Riga continues to be an excellent gateway for passengers travelling within our network

MARTIN ALEXANDER GAUSS
 Chief Executive Officer, airBaltic

Dear guests of airBaltic,

This year we will fly more than 100 direct routes, meaning that we will connect the Baltic capitals to the world better than ever before. With 17 destinations from Tallinn and 11 destinations from Vilnius, we are the main connectivity provider in the Baltics. By the upcoming summer, we will connect Amsterdam, Berlin, Paris, Hamburg, and Zurich to all three Baltic capitals.

We will also continue to improve our network at our main hub in Riga. This year we are launching new flights from Riga to Manchester, Yerevan, and Yekaterinburg as well as Bergen and Trondheim. By offering flights to more than 80 destinations with short connection times, Riga continues to be an excellent gateway for passengers travelling within our network of Europe, Scandinavia, CIS, Russia, and the Middle East.

We have transformed a lot. Just a few years ago we were carrying around 2.5 million passengers a year and had not yet received the brand-new Airbus A220-300 aircraft. Today we have doubled in size, carrying five million passengers in 2020, the majority of our passengers enjoy the benefits of the A220-300, and we are providing increasingly better travel opportunities to our Estonian and Lithuanian passengers.

As we continue our growth, we must make sure to create a smaller impact on the environment. Even though we are proud to fly the greenest commercial aircraft available and in many cases provide the most environmentally friendly travel option between cities across our network, we can't stop there. This year we are putting additional focus on sustainability and will be implementing new projects to decrease the amount of CO₂ emissions. We are on our way to becoming a carbon-neutral airline.

Hope to see you on an airBaltic flight again soon!

Yours,
 Martin Alexander Gauss

The ultimate February checklist

Annas Hotel Spa

SPA WEEKEND

More and more scientific studies confirm that it's very important to take care of your body, mind, and soul on a daily basis. Wintery February is the perfect time to practise this wellness mantra at a spa centre. In Latvia, the resort town of Jūrmala stands out with the broadest offer of spa treatments. Jūrmala's first spa was built in 1814, and today the town is full of great places to get a massage, facial treatment, body wrap, or myriad other treatments. But spa culture can be found elsewhere in Latvia as well. For those looking for peace, quiet, and beautiful rural landscapes, Annas Hotel in scenic Vidzeme is a great find. This boutique hotel, set in a lakeside manor dating to 1650 and surrounded by a mature park, is home to one of the highest-rated spas in the country. annashotel.com

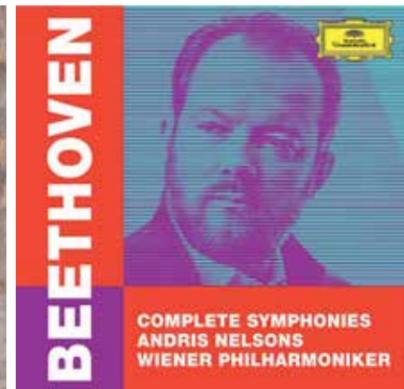

HOME

Bring in the colour

Slippers are back in a big way. All of the major fashion houses are on board, and it's no longer taboo to leave your house wearing a pair. But even if you don't follow the whims of fads, this type of footwear is useful in every home. The Latvian brand Woolig has caught the attention of Baltic fashion editors – its natural felted wool slippers will add a cosy and colourful touch to your day.

MUSIC

The sound of Beethoven

This year, Latvian conductor Andris Nelsons conducted the Vienna Philharmonic Orchestra for the prestigious New Year's Day concert in Vienna. Last autumn he joined forces with the Wiener Philharmoniker to record Ludwig van Beethoven's nine symphonies for Deutsche Grammophon. The release of this new album marks the start of the Yellow Label's celebration this year of the 250th anniversary of Beethoven's birth.

Beauty in the details

Beautiful dishes play an important role in any interior. The Latvian brand Esse Ceramics, founded by ceramicist-designer Esmeralda Purviške, is a welcome discovery for lovers of elegant interior design. Purviške typically works with porcelain, which she feels is the most beautiful but also the most difficult material. Loyal customers appreciate the witty detail and visual design of Esse Ceramics products.

The exhibition Mekas Winks Better at the MO Museum features New York culture of the 1960s and 70s and includes such prominent figures as Yoko Ono, John Lennon, Andy Warhol, and Elvis Presley. These icons were not captured by Mekas' camera purposefully but simply as part of New York's overall cultural context.

◀ Frida Kahlo, Self-Portrait with Thorn Necklace and Hummingbird, 1940
Collection of the Harry Ransom Center, The University of Texas at Austin, Nickolas Muray Collection of Modern Mexican Art

The new year at the Schirn Kunsthalle kicks off with Fantastic Women: Surreal Worlds from Meret Oppenheim to Louise Bourgeois, an exhibition that honours significant female surrealist artists (Römerberg; shirn.de; February 15 – May 24). Usually known only as depicted objects, fantasies, or the life companions of prominent male surrealists, women artists were relatively rare in the surrealist genre. However, in their search for a new female identity and their examinations of subjects such as myths, religion, contemporary politics, and literature, Louise Bourgeois, Frida Kahlo, Meret Oppenheim, and other women left an indelible mark on art history. This major thematic exhibition encompasses more than three decades and offers nearly 260 paintings, photographs, sculptures, and films by 50 international artists, emphasising the contribution of female surrealists through a rich interplay of different styles, mediums, and content.

The Palmengarten is the perfect spot for an urban escape in any season (Siesmayerstraße 61; palmengarten.de). Opened in 1871, the botanical garden covers 22 hectares and is home to Germany's richest collection of tropical and subtropical plants as well as 14 greenhouses, including a cast-iron glass structure with a particularly romantic atmosphere. Every season, and nearly every month, Palmengarten honours a different variety of flowers and plants. Some exotic marvels – including the bird of paradise, which resembles a bird's head – are still blooming now in February, during the transition from winter to spring. Likewise, the yellow winter aconite and Japanese camellia marvellously complement the thousands of tulips, daffodils, crocuses, and forsythias also coming to life in the garden.

The Ameron Frankfurt Neckarvillen Boutique is a new hotel that features a stylish mid-century look, opulent lightness, and contemporary elegance (Neckarstraße 7-15; ameronhotels.com). Located in the historical Bahnhofsviertel in central Frankfurt, it occupies four former Wilhelmine-era villas dating to the early 20th century. After a meticulous renovation and refurbishment, the four buildings have now been connected. The hotel features 133 rooms, some with signature porthole windows. Italian architect Luigi Fragola headed the interior makeover, which blends refined Art Deco lines, precious details such as marble patterns in the bathrooms, 1950s-style glass lamps in the lobby, noble hues of pale blue, parquet floors, and a rich selection of velvet, leather, and brass. Prices from EUR 242.

Boa Boa restaurant in the artsy Brera district is a new destination for foodies and design aficionados (Via Pontaccio 5). Designer Vito Nesta has created an exotic and elegant interior with lush palm trees painted in icy shades of grey and a collage of multi-shaped vintage mirrors that visually double the size of the space, reflecting a kaleidoscope of colourful round lamps. Against the radiant background of tropical wallpapers and colourful interplays of warm orange, bottle green, and blue, fusion cuisine with Brazilian and Asian influences reveals unexpected dimensions in flavour. Menu highlights include lobster uramaki, tuna bowls, and chicken tortillas.

Fondazione Prada offers a glimpse into the atelier of cinema icon Jean-Luc Godard. The foundation's new permanent project, Le Studio d'Orphée (Orpheus' Studio; Largo Isarco, 2; fondazioneprada.org), is an installation of the director's living and working space and editing/recording studio. The setting, including furniture, paintings, books, and technical material from Godard's work since 2010, have been brought here from his house in Switzerland. Visitors can also attend a screening of Godard's nine short films and his latest film, The Image Book (2018), in the very place where it was originally edited and post-produced. The fragmentary and mystifying aura of this film correlates with the emotional geography of Godard's space, which reflects on the construction of the creative process and drifting between real life and imagination.

Milan's shopping landmark, Galleria Vittorio Emanuele, is home to a new luxurious art hotel, the Galleria Vik (Via Silvio Pellico 8; galleriavikmilano.com). Celebrating the heritage of the fashion capital and the splendour of its own historic location, this 89-room property is the quintessence of edgy design, prime artistry, and decoration. While the modern version of Auguste Rodin's The Thinker and a massive wall-to-ceiling fresco by Italian artist Alex Folla greet guests in the lobby, each room is designed using vivid colour and accents from vintage and antique to ultra-modern. The interiors also feature original sculptures, murals, and paintings by 90 international artists. The suites overlooking the La Scala theatre have double-height ceilings and arched windows. Prices from EUR 320.

February fills the streets of European cities with a dazzling array of spring carnivals, and the Czech capital is no exception, luring locals and visitors alike with the historical Carnevale Praha on February 22–25. The tradition goes back to medieval times, when the holy transition between winter and spring was celebrated. The carnival still bears the old Czech name Masopust, or ‘meat fast’. Dressed in self-made costumes and animal masks, people used to walk from door to door asking for treats in exchange for songs. Now the carnival dances through the city streets with music, noise, food, and drink. The highlight of the modern carnival is an outdoor parade, a colourful masked procession that flows past famous landmarks in the Old Town and downtown Prague, taking over museums, shops, and restaurants.

Known for its rich cinematic traditions, Prague celebrates the opening of NaFiM (Jungmannova 748/30; nafilm.org). Located in the historic Mozarteum building in the city centre, the new national film museum claims to be one of the first in the country to offer both an educational and interactive experience. The family- and especially kid-friendly venue invites visitors to delve into the world of movie-making and learn all about the history of the ‘seventh art’. Museum visitors can build their own projection machine and screen a movie as it was done decades ago; they can also experience virtual reality effects and try out animation skills, editing, and designing sound and special effects. A two-hour programme about Czech and world cinema classics accompanies the exhibition.

To celebrate a quarter of a century in the hospitality industry, Maximilian Hotel has undergone a stylish revamp by the Conran and Partners design studio (Haštalská 14; maximilianhotel.com). The cosy 71-room hotel occupying two historical buildings facing the Haštalska Church in the Old Town is located just a few steps from the famous Pařížská shopping street. After renovation, the ground floor has been expanded with the new Brasserie Maximilian, a bar zone, a library, and a courtyard garden. The hotel’s seven types of rooms are united by delicate hues of blue, stylish lighting accessories, and details inspired by Czech modernism. Prices from EUR 92.

From humble beginnings

Abu Dhabi's cultural heritage

When you think of Abu Dhabi, or any of the glimmering cities that make up the Arabian Peninsula, you think of skyscrapers. And it's no wonder – while Abu Dhabi was only a small settlement in the desert just over 50 years ago, it's now one of the biggest and wealthiest cities in the world. However, despite this rapid rise on the global stage and hundreds of buildings rising from the sand, there are still relics of the past left amongst the sea of skyscrapers. And there's no building that links the city to its past as strongly as Qasr al Hosn, Abu Dhabi's oldest and most significant building.

Qasr al Hosn's origins date to 1761, when a nomadic Bedu tribe discovered a freshwater spring on the island of Abu Dhabi. Before that, the tribes that roamed the desert rarely set foot on the island, as there was no hunting to be had and no way to water their camels. But the discovery of the spring changed all of that. The leader of the tribe, Sheikh Dhiyab bin Isa, ordered a watchtower built to protect this precious resource. This was the first building in Abu Dhabi and the humble beginnings of the ambitious city that we see today.

During the first half of the 19th century, the sheikh continued to build, turning the watchtower into a fort that controlled the bountiful fishing and pearling trades in the Arabian Gulf. But it wasn't until 1855 and the uniting of the Bedu desert tribes by Sheikh Zayed bin Khalifa that a community began to grow around the fort. Sheikh Zayed was determined to bring economic prosperity to his people and improve international relations and used Qasr al Hosn as his royal residence. Thanks to his vision and success, by the turn of the 20th century the growing community of Abu Dhabi had the largest fleet of pearling ships in the Arabian Gulf – over 400 of them – and increasing wealth.

But when Abu Dhabi struck oil in the mid-20th century, the pearling fleet was soon to be forgotten. Overnight, Abu Dhabi became one of the wealthiest nations in the world. With the city's rapid rise, the United Arab Emirates (UAE) sought to preserve the importance and cultural significance of Qasr al Hosn, and a large portion of funds were used to construct a palace surrounding the original fortifications and watchtower. The building became a symbol of the city and its growing prosperity, showcasing both its humble beginnings and incredible wealth. Qasr al Hosn remained the official seat of government for the UAE until 1966.

Today, the fort is Abu Dhabi's oldest surviving building, a humble structure surrounded by the towering skyscrapers of the modern age. After an extensive restoration to preserve the original fortifications and palace, it has once again opened to the public as a cultural hub where visitors can learn all about the nation's fascinating journey – from its beginnings as a watchtower guarding freshwater in the desert to one of the wealthiest cities in the world. qasralhosn.ae

MY PARIS

The City of Light, gloomy February weather, and airy jazz melodies form a magical triad. Paris-based jazz singer Caloé is a master of scat singing, a vocal style that's unique to jazz, and she has wowed audiences from the Tribeca Performing Arts Center in New York City to the famous Montreux Jazz Festival. But her favourite place to perform is 'the most gorgeous city in the world – Paris.

Le Baiser Salé

This is the place to be for jazz fans! It's located on Rue des Lombard in the Châtelet neighbourhood – the street that has all the best jazz clubs in the city. This café/concert venue offers performances that fuse jazz with all kinds of other music, from hip hop to electronic. I play there every month! My next performance there is February 23.

L'Hôtel

I once had a photo shoot at this hotel and fell in love with its lush Parisian interior, which was created by the lauded French architect Jacques Garcia. It's the world's first boutique hotel and the last home of Oscar Wilde. On top of that, there's a relaxing spa in the basement.

Skip the white-table-cloth venues and instead head to this petite and homey restaurant for a classic French meal that won't break the bank. Managed by a foodie and oenophile, the ever-changing menu at Chez Val never fails.

Musée Rodin

Paris is brimming with world-class museums, but this one is often overlooked. Dedicated to the works of the French sculptor Auguste Rodin, it features a stunning 18th-century mansion and a garden peppered with Rodin's sculptures. It's undoubtedly the most beautiful garden in Paris.

Walk like an Athenian

Athens offers one of the most beautiful walks in the world – a stroll that lets you experience 5000 years of history.

The Greek capital has given rise to democracy, science, and fine art, and people have long come here to dive into its irresistible energy and world-class culture. But one thing that makes Athens even more of a gem to be discovered is the walking route that connects the city's archaeological sites. Few places in the world offer such a saturated stroll around a city centre where you're surrounded by ancient buildings, monuments, and thoughtful pedestrian infrastructure.

Exquisite views of ancient Greek architecture begin the moment you head out for your morning coffee, taking the urban experience to a completely new level. But how did it all begin? In 1833, architects Stamatios Kleanthis and Eduard Schaubert had a vision of making Athens more walkable by offering pedestrians a walkway through ancient Athens. Thankfully, their dream eventually came true.

Nowadays, the walkway along the Dionysiou Areopagitou, Apostolou Pavlou, and Ermou streets has become the most striking shift in the urban planning of Athens, making about 700 hectares of history available to pedestrians. In effect, the city has become a huge open-air museum, allowing visitors and locals alike to discover the Temple of Olympian Zeus, the Acropolis, Filopappou Hill, and the Ancient Agora without having to battle motorised traffic.

Odeon of Herodes Atticus

HISTORICAL TREASURES CONNECTED BY A SINGLE WALKWAY

Odeon of Herodes Atticus

Situated on the southern slopes of the Acropolis, the Herodeion is one of the world's oldest open-air theatres. This ancient amphitheatre was built in AD 161 by Herodes Atticus in memory of his wife, Regilla. Today, it regularly hosts performances under the Athenian sky. Entry to the Odeon is from Dionysiou Areopagitou Street and the walkway that links the main archaeological sites. To get inside the Acropolis and see its north and south slopes, including the Odeon and Theatre of Dionysus, buy a EUR 30 pass valid for five days (etickets.tap.gr).

Filopappou (Philopappou) Hill

Filopappou Hill, or Hill of the Muses, offers one of the best views of the Acropolis and the Gulf of Aegina. The hill was named after Prince Philopappos, who died in Athens in 116 AD. Nowadays, this green area in the very centre of Athens is a firm favourite among tourists and locals alike. Climb to the top of the hill to see the grand marble monument built in honour of the prince. On your way back down, follow the signs that lead to the Prison of Socrates to see another hidden gem.

Thisio

The famous walkway ends at the Apostolou Pavlou pedestrian street in the Thisio neighbourhood, where locals enjoy people-watching. Thisio was named after Theseus, the legendary king and founder of Athens who travelled to Crete to kill the Minotaur. This neighbourhood with old tram lines and beautiful Neoclassical buildings evokes a nostalgic feeling of having stepped back in time. To explore more of this calm and authentic Athenian neighbourhood, step away from the main street or follow narrow Iraklidon Street to find bohemian cafés and restaurants further away from the Acropolis.

Where to go in Prague, according to influencer Jan Valečka

My secret spot

'My secret spot is located at the top of Powder Tower (also called Powder Gate), which you can easily find while strolling around Prague. It's very close to Náměstí Republiky, or Republic Square. The tower itself is one of the most treasured monuments of Late Gothic Prague. You can visit many lookout towers in Prague, but this one is probably my favourite because it usually doesn't get very busy during the day. I suggest you go in the early morning, when you can see Prague waking up and enjoy a 360-degree view of the Old Town. And if you aren't into stunning views, the tower also has a wonderful gallery and expositions.'

Take your friends TO MYSTETSKYI ARSENAL IN KYIV

Enjoying contemporary art, finding a great novel at a book fair, or attending an intellectual lecture are only a few of the reasons why you should visit this art complex located in a former armoury.

Words by Natalia Maiboroda

This impressive construction – the first structure in Kyiv in the Classicism style, built of bricks without the use of external stitching – was originally used for military purposes. The impressive storage facility for gunpowder and harnesses was completed in 1801, with construction lasting about 20 years. Recently, however, it has been turned into one of the most popular art venues in the city. Hence the name, Mystetskyi Arsenal, meaning ‘art armoury’. The national cultural, art, and museum complex is situated in the heart of the Ukrainian capital next to Kyiv Pechersk Lavra, a complex of churches founded in the 11th century and now a UNESCO World Heritage Site.

Mystetskyi Arsenal is where the first Kyiv International Biennial of Contemporary Art (2012) took place, which showcased works by Ukrainian artists together with installations by Ai Weiwei and Louise Bourgeois. In addition to art exhibitions, Mystetskyi Arsenal also hosts a variety of other interesting events, including Ukrainian Fashion Week, concerts, markets, and an annual book fair that’s one of the biggest in Ukraine.

This year, on May 20–24, the 10th edition of the International Book Arsenal Festival will be held at Mystetskyi Arsenal. Don’t miss the chance to attend one of the locals’ favourite events; it even won the Literary Festival Award at the London Book Fair International Excellence Awards last year. The good news is that no matter what language you speak, you can always find entertainment at the festival. Attend book presentations and lectures by foreign authors, enjoy the publishing industry exhibition, listen to live music, or simply grab some local delicacies at the numerous food stalls. The chiming of church bells from the monastery next door gives the experience a special charm.

Experience an uninterrupted Scandinavian forest landscape from Forest Tower, a 45-metre hyperboloid observation point and captivating new landmark in Denmark.

Words by Olga Dolina

The historic Gissfeld Kloster Forest in Zealand, an hour's ride south of Copenhagen, enchants with glacial woodland scenery: meltwater cliffs, hills, lakes, picturesque wetlands, and meadows. Camp Adventure, a 75-hectare climbing park, opened here in 2013 to highlight the area with a wide variety of activities, including zip lines and ten climbing courses in the forest. The park's newest attraction, Forest Tower, celebrates unity with local nature and progressive Danish architecture.

The first of its kind in Scandinavia, the climbing structure was created by Copenhagen-based Effekt Architects. The journey begins with a 900-metre-long wooden boardwalk. The main idea behind this element was to make the forest, which is rich in exceptional flora and fauna, accessible to all. Carefully winding through century-old beech and oak trees, the elevated path leads to a tower accessed via a 650-metre-long spiral ramp. The tower's specific geometry – a slender waist between a widened base and top – looks sculpturally captivating on its own, but the curvature also provides better eye contact with the landscape while proceeding up and down the ramp. To fit into the surrounding context, the architects used locally sourced oak and weathered steel to build the tower.

One's perspective of the sylvan panorama changes with each circle climbed, providing a unique experience of the Nordic forest. In addition, step-free climbing is rather relieving for less sporty visitors. At the top, visitors are rewarded with a viewing platform set 140 metres above sea level, which makes it the highest accessible point in the whole of Zealand. On a clear day, one can even see Copenhagen in the distance.

Bringing expats home

The story behind the social movement Latvia Works

During the economic crisis of 2008, 'emigration' became a commonly used term in Latvia, referring to those Latvians who left the country in search of a better life and career opportunities. More than ten years later, and following several government initiatives that did not bring the desired results, Tele2, the leading mobile network operator in Latvia, introduced the social movement Latvia Works (Latvija Strādā). The idea behind this initiative is to bring Latvian expats home in a more rational way by joining forces with other companies and businesses.

In May 2018, when the movement was initiated, the unemployment rate had reached a low of 6.4%, and finding qualified professionals had become increasingly difficult. Tele2 thus took the lead and decided to address the more than 170,000 Latvian citizens living and working abroad.

'Everyone has a friend, family member, or former colleague who has emigrated from Latvia. This is why encouraging expats to move back home is a sensitive and socially responsible topic. We believe it's about time we dispel the myth that there are no incredible career opportunities or other benefits for professionals residing in Latvia,' says Raivo Rosts, the chief commercial officer at Tele2 Latvia.

Initially, Latvia Works aimed to attract 100 local companies and bring back 1000 people from abroad. Today, it has already brought together 114 employers, forming a collaborative network of companies, including airBaltic. Seeing the success of the movement, the airline decided to join in and bring fellow countrymen home not only on flights for the holidays but also to become members of the airBaltic team. As one of the best employers in Latvia uniting professionals of more than 30 nationalities, the airline offers career opportunities in dozens of professions and is interested in recruiting highly motivated individuals, helping them to relocate and adjust to their new settings if necessary.

Over the past few years, an increasing number of candidates approaching airBaltic are Baltic citizens residing elsewhere in Europe who are ready to return and capitalise on the international experience they have gained. The company welcomed its 1500th employee in 2018, and it is noteworthy that this person had recently reemigrated back to Latvia from the United Kingdom, bringing with him his expertise in aircraft maintenance. Almost every group of students at airBaltic's Pilot Academy also includes people who have returned to Latvia and are using this opportunity to make a change and fulfil their dream of becoming a pilot.

This highly significant yet relatively unexplored phenomenon has had greater resonance than simply a means by which to bring Latvians home. 'We are seeking people who have sentimental feelings towards Latvia, who want to speak their native language on a day-to-day basis, and who want their children to grow up in Latvia. We want to inspire them with heart-warming experiences of others who have returned to Latvia from abroad with their families and children,' Rosts says proudly.

Although Latvia Work's survey (2019) reveals that the decision to move back to Latvia is influenced by emotional factors, the emigrants themselves state that the economic situation and labour market are equally important. And the facts speak for themselves. The Latvian economy has grown considerably over the past few years, and there are now many great local and international companies offering their employees a positive and empowering work environment as well as professional development opportunities throughout their career.

During the first year of operations Latvia Works facilitated the return of 132 Latvians (not including their family members) from abroad, resulting in a contribution of almost four million euros to the country's economy. This is a small step forward that urges state institutions, employers, and local residents to help spread the news around the world about Latvia as an attractive place to work, live, and raise a family.

Raivo Rosts is the chief commercial officer at Tele2 Latvia, the leading communications operator in Latvia. He has worked in the telecommunications industry for more than ten years. He previously managed companies in the fields of pay TV and TV data analytics and has also conducted sales seminars in 15 countries in Scandinavia, the Baltics, Central Europe, CIS, and Africa.

The classic fondue recipe features either Emmental or Gruyère cheese

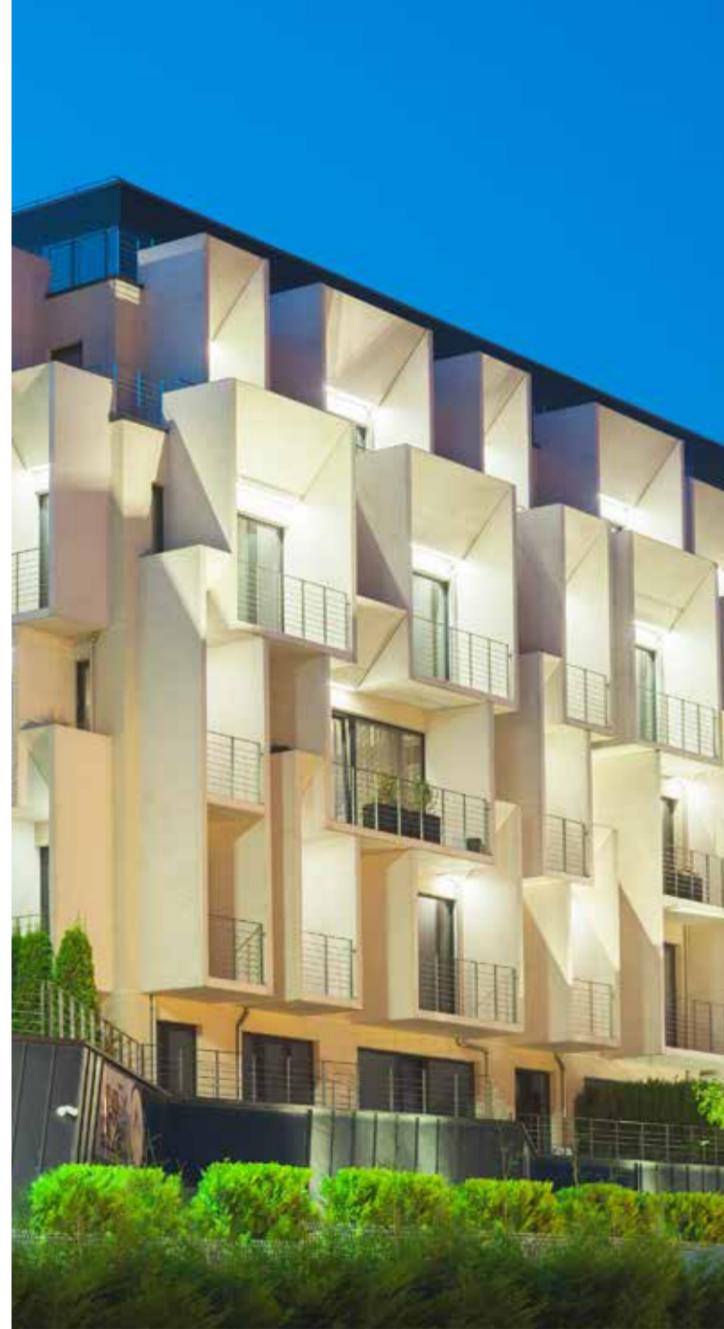

Words by Ilze Vītola

The hot, bubbling pot of cheese known as fondue is the prime après-ski dish. Derived from the French verb fondre, meaning ‘to melt’, the origins of the dish are hazy. The earliest known recipe for cheese cooked with wine comes from a 1699 book published in Zurich. But it wasn't until 1930 and the Swiss Cheese Union's eager promotional campaign to increase cheese consumption that fondue became Switzerland's national dish.

Today, fondue is as quintessentially Swiss as chocolate and watches. But the Swiss only eat it in winter. It's served in a communal pot (caquelon) over a portable stove (réchaud) that's heated with a candle or gas burner. Diners then dunk bread and other morsels such as veggies, fruit, or meat into the melted cheese using long-stemmed forks. The classic fondue recipe features either Emmental or Gruyère cheese, or a mix of both melted with white wine and a shot of kirsch brandy. In Geneva, fondue comes as moitié-moitié (half-and-half) made with Gruyère and Vacherin cheeses.

Gaining in popularity on tables elsewhere in the world, the dish has obtained other varieties, including fondue bourguignonne, in which slices of meat are dipped in a pot filled with hot oil, and fondue chinoise with sliced meat cooked in a simmering broth. Of course, there's also the kids' favourite – chocolate fondue, in which pieces of fruit are dipped in the sweet, brown mixture.

When enjoying Swiss fondue, be careful not to lose your piece of bread in the communal pot. According to Swiss tradition, you will be penalised by having to pay for the dinner or washing the dishes!

THE FRENCH RIVIERA

MORE THAN MEETS THE EYE

A wide walkway stretches as far as the eye can see. It's wedged between the deep blue Mediterranean Sea and the green curtain of palm trees along the street lined with fantasyland villas and hotels. During the warm months, the walkway swarms with holidaymakers and locals soaking up the sunshine, but I'm fortunate to be here in the middle of the cold season and share this scene with only the rare vacationer, an elderly woman taking her Yorkshire Terrier for a walk, and some lone readers occupying the azure blue chairs with a front-row view of the sea.

I stop for a while, turn my head to the water gleaming in the sunlight, and inhale deeply. The calendar maybe says otherwise, but for me this sublime Mediterranean climate announces the beginning of spring. Which reminds me of a quote from Hemingway's A Moveable Feast: 'When spring came, even the false spring, there were no problems except where to be happiest.'

As a matter of fact, the fresh, balmy air and clear blue sky is the reason why Nice and the whole Côte d'Azur are so famous. This area was immortalised by Scottish writer Tobias Smollett, an asthmatic who visited here in the 18th century and wrote extensively about the region's salubrious climate in his book Travels through France and Italy. After a few centuries spent under the rule of the House of Savoy, at the end of the 18th century Nice once again became a part of France and the first railway was introduced, linking the region with the rest of Europe. Inspired by Smollett's writings, the cream of British society began fleeing from the drizzly weather in the United Kingdom to the sunny Mediterranean coast. Contrary to the present trend, they came in the winter, making that the high season. Queen Victoria frequently spent the cold months of the year here. In fact, the plush Excelsior Regina Palace hotel perched in the hilly Cimiez district of Nice was built specially for her. And the British upper class funded the construction of the promenade I'm now walking along – that's how it got the name Promenade des Anglais.

Port Lympia in Nice is one of the prime ports for boats and yachts sailing the Mediterranean Sea. It was commissioned by King Charles Emmanuel III of Sardinia in 1748.

Nice has a relaxed vibe, but it's nowhere near sleepy, even in winter

The azure blue waters on one side of the walkway gave rise to the local name of this region, the Côte d'Azur, which the rest of the world calls the French Riviera. Literally meaning 'the azure coast', the label was endowed by the writer Stéphen Liégeard, who owned a property in Cannes in the 17th century and titled his book Côte d'Azur. I make a brief stop at 37 Promenade des Anglais to admire the Hotel Negresco, a stately building topped with a large pastel-coloured dome. This is a place where you wish the walls could speak and spill the secrets of its patrons. How did Dalí maintain his funky moustache? What kind of pyjamas did The Beatles wear?

IN A COUPLE OF WEEKS, PLACE MASSÉNA, NICE'S MAIN SQUARE, WILL BE FILLED WITH JOYOUS CROWDS DRESSED IN AMUSING MASKS AND COSTUMES. The Nice Carnival has taken place since the Middle Ages, but it wasn't until the 19th century that a parade became its main event. In 1830, when King Charles Felix of Sardinia attended the annual celebration in Nice, the locals organised a parade in honour of the king's visit. And the king has now been present in the parade ever since. Only nowadays we see him in the form of a gigantic floating figure whose appearance changes annually according to the theme of that year's carnival. This year, it will be the King of Fashion. Spanning two weeks, the carnival attracts more than a million visitors and is as grandiose as the carnivals in Rio de Janeiro and Venice.

I head into the narrow streets of Le Vieux Nice, or the Old Town. The ground floors of the pastel-coloured buildings house boutiques specialising in spices, fragrances, soap, and products made with lavender, nodding to the fact that Grasse – the perfume capital of the world – lies just an hour's drive from Nice. The upper floors of the buildings are graced by colourful window shutters and fresh laundry catching the wintry sunlight. Although Nice is the largest city in the region and one of the top tourist destinations in France, the charming streets of its Old Town feel amazingly authentic. Here life buzzes as before, with locals leisurely making their way from the boulangerie to the market, then continuing with a sumptuous lunch that melts into apéro. But the streets are not crowded, the people are as many as the olives in a Niçoise salad (not many, but just enough to get the right flavour), and I do not feel lonely. I pass the stunning opera house and enter Pâtisserie Henri Auer. Chocolate truffles and candied fruits are arranged in the glass display cases in a gilded Rococo interior that hasn't changed since Queen Victoria was a loyal customer at the shop.

As befits a Mediterranean city, Nice has a relaxed vibe, but it's nowhere near sleepy, even in winter. Yes, a few of the restaurants close for the off-season, which means less of a choice...but in these excessive times that can be a real treat. I wander into a little side street and stop at Chez Thérésa, which serves socca, a chickpea-flour pancake that's a quintessential Niçois snack. The recipe is simple and timeless: chickpea flour, water, olive oil, and salt stirred into a smooth mixture that, as legend has it, was discovered in the 16th century when the Turks attacked the city. After running out of ammunition, the ingenious residents of Nice mixed hot oil with chickpea soup and poured it onto the heads of the invaders. Not only did that stop the intruders, but, when they licked their fingers, the people discovered that the ammunition was also tasty.

In the 20th century the streets here were filled with socca vendors. One of them, a seller named Thérésa who ran her stall in the Cours Saleya market, won the hearts of the locals. While this gregarious woman is long gone, there's still a kiosk at the market named after her, and it sells socca that's made here in this modest café, just a few streets from the market. After putting a halt to the construction work being done by the neighbour, which fills the street with a cloud of dust, the cook heads back behind the counter and puts a dollop of the yellow batter onto the pan and slides it into a wood-fired oven. Minutes later I get my golden brown morsel shredded in pieces and served in a paper cone. It's heavenly: crispy on the outside, gooey inside, savoury, and moreish. It's surprising how something so simple can taste so divine. Considering this warming dish and the year-round sunshine, the residents of Nice are one lucky people.

'You must come here in the autumn, it's wonderful! Actually, come here in any season but summer,' says Antoine, the co-owner of Trésors Publics. Recognised by its crimson red façade, the store stocks stationery, tableware, toys, cosmetics, and other products all made in France and carefully selected by the owners. Fed up with the fact that most of the souvenirs in the stores along the Côte d'Azur are made in China, Antoine and his partner Nicolas decided to break the mould and opened a store in 2017 offering goods produced exclusively in France. They're one of the new, more open-minded breed of shop and restaurant owners in Nice. Indeed, there's no lack of concept stores and cafés catering to the avocado-toast generation and rebelling against the stringent opening hours that most of the traditional bistros still adhere to, commonly from noon to 14.00 for lunch and 19.00 to 22.00 for dinner. When I ask Antoine what to bring home from Nice, he ushers me to the bottles of olive oil lined up in the corner of the store. Some euros lighter and a few litres of olive oil richer, I set out on the streets again.

A MAN SIPPING A GLASS OF WHITE WINE ON THE NEARBY CAFÉ TERRACE CATCHES MY EYE. The unusual thing about him is that he's dressed in full scrubs. What's so urgent that an apparent surgeon needs to rush to without even taking off his medical cap? One word: apéro. Those golden hours of gathering for an aperitif is the epitome of the French art de vivre, or the art of living. As I've been roaming around Nice's hazy streets, I haven't noticed that the air itself has taken on a warm tinge. I hurry back to the coast as if my life depended on it. I pass the Cours Saleya market, the sellers packing up their stalls under the signature striped awnings. This daily market has everything, from fruits and vegetables to cheese and seafood and a whole square dedicated to flowers (and for a split second I become terrified that it's Monday and I've missed the action, namely, the weekly Monday flea market). But the spectacle that awaits me at the seaside is truly worth rushing for: ombré skies of

The sublime climate of the French Riviera lets one dine al fresco all year round.

The Gare du Sud railway station in Nice has recently been converted into a food court.

Artists have sojourned in this region to experience its particularly soft light blue, orange, and pink; a soundtrack of waves crashing against the stony beach; and silhouettes of couples cuddling up on the beach, a father fishing with his sons, a busker playing French love songs. It's an almost unbearable beauty. And it's no wonder so many great artists have sojourned in this region at least once in their lifetimes to experience its particularly soft light. Even the British gastronomic genius Heston Blumenthal refers to light when asked about why he has moved to the South of France.

Nice's verdant Castle Hill abounds in blooming yellow trees. These are the mimosas, the first herald of spring and another contribution from the English holidaymakers. They brought these gently fragrant blossoms to southern France in the 19th century from Australia. Just 40 minutes from Cannes, the Massif de Tanneron near Mandelieu boasts the largest mimosa forest in Europe, and the plant is still used in the perfume industry in nearby Grasse. As I enjoy these little sun-shaped trees, the actual sun warms my back and yet again I catch myself innocently smiling. And the view from the hilltop – a picture-perfect scene of the Old Town and the Mediterranean Sea – is the icing on the cake.

I come down to the port area brimming with impressive yachts so white that sunglasses are mandatory. The surroundings remind me of Genoa, and indeed, the 18th-century buildings that hug the port were inspired by the Italian Renaissance. The area is bustling, proving that the harbour is still vital to the life of the city. Passing several groups having picnic lunches on the white quai, I drop by Café du Cycliste, the flagship café of the French cycling fashion brand Café du Cycliste. Immaculate and capacious, if it weren't for the harbour outside the shop's windows, I'd think I was in a shop in Scandinavia. After having my caffeine fix surrounded by bikes and smart accessories hanging everywhere like works of art, I set out to marvel at some actual objects of art.

THE COLOSSAL NEOCLASSICAL BUILDING COVERED IN CARRARA MARBLE THAT HOUSES THE NICE MUSEUM OF MODERN AND CONTEMPORARY ART (MAMAC) showcases art movements such as new realism, the Art of Assemblage, and pop art. Despite being packed with masterpieces by big-name artists from Andy Warhol to Bernar Venet, I find myself completely alone here. It's just me, César's compressed cars, and Yves Klein's hypnotic blue monochromes. Native son Klein was one of the founders of the Nouveaux Réalistes, a new school of artists that emerged in Nice in the 1960s as the French answer to pop art. As a matter of fact, in the mid-20th century the Côte d'Azur was something of an art hub, with the already renowned Marc Chagall as well as Henri Matisse and Picasso all living here. In appreciation of the region's hospitality, each of them bequeathed a museum: the Musée Matisse and Marc Chagall National Museum are located in Cimiez, while the Musée Picasso resides in Antibes.

I later meet up with Rebecca François, a curator at MAMAC since 2008, to get her perspective on why so many artists have been beguiled by the region. 'The light and climate, the comfort of life, the Mediterranean cuisine, the beauty of the region, its cosmopolitan character and strategic position...' she recites the many reasons as we sit outside on the museum's terrace, next to the Loch Ness Monster sculpture by Niki de Saint Phalle. When I ask if there's a distinctive artistic manner that's characteristic of the region today, she becomes philosophical: 'It's more like an attitude for art marked by a great spirit of freedom, casualness, and irreverence.'

The serene surroundings continue to inspire contemporary native artists. For example, fishing is a recurring theme in the work of Noël Dolla – his abstract steel construction graces Nice's port and is devoted to all the courageous sailors in the Mediterranean. Emmanuel Régent realises a series of drawings focused on the walkway along the Villefranche-sur-Mer seaside, while Ève Pietruschi and Benoit Barbagli are inspired by the hinterlands of Nice. The force behind the city's artistic reputation is Villa Arson, which is at once a national school of fine arts, an art centre, and an artists' residence. I later come across La Tete Carrée Library, a building-sculpture designed by French artist Sacha Sosno that's shaped like a blockhead. Titled Thinking Inside the Box, it's the perfect antithesis for the all-encompassing creative spirit of the city.

YOUR NEXT DESTINATION / February

The industrial charm of Café du Cycliste in Nice. In addition to shopping for gear and sipping espresso, here you can also rent out-of-the-ordinary bicycles.

THANKS TO THE RAILWAY, TRAVELLING ALONG THE FRENCH RIVIERA IS A BREEZE. JUST 40 MINUTES OF GAZING OUT THE TRAIN WINDOW AT HILLS CROWDED WITH HOUSES AND BLUE WATERS BEYOND, and I'm in Cannes. Still puzzled about which of the wedding cake-like villas I saw along the way are owned by Bono, Elton John, and Brad Pitt, I pass a line of high-end fashion stores and the imposing InterContinental Carlton, where Hitchcock's To Catch a Thief was filmed. I aim for Le Suquet, the city's old quarter. The meandering streets are a gallery of charming doorways and, incredibly, retain the feel of the fishing village that Cannes once was, before becoming a prime destination for the well-heeled and the gathering place for cinephiles every year since the Cannes Film Festival kicked off in 1946. Before getting back on the train, I amble along the Promenade de la Croisette and amuse myself by reading the names of the luxurious yachts docked in the Vieux Port.

The combination of affluence and the simple fisherman's life that's distinctive of the Côte d'Azur has inspired not just painters but also writers. I get off the train in Antibes to follow in the footsteps of F. Scott Fitzgerald, who rented the Villa St. Louis here with his wife, Zelda, in the 1920s. During his stay, he finished writing The Great Gatsby and began writing Tender Is the Night. Today the villa is home to the five-star Hotel Belles-Rives. Naturally, I visit the hotel's Fitzgerald Piano Bar. As I get comfy on one of the leopard-print bar stools with a perfectly stirred La Rose Fitzgerald in my hand, I inspect the clientèle. There's a bunch of millennials taking Instagram pictures and googling Fitzgerald quotes for captions, there's an Anglophone couple seemingly on their honeymoon, and there's a group of demigods with ladies dressed in swanky clothing on their arms. To be honest, they all really do look like characters out of Fitzgerald's stories.

'Let me tell you about the very rich,' wrote Fitzgerald in The Great Gatsby. 'They are different from you and me.' Moved by this quote, I travel to the micro-state of Monaco, which has the world's highest GDP per capita. It's a good thing that some of the spices of life, such as people-watching and breathtaking vistas, are free of charge, because Monaco is a good place for both. Nestled on the cliffs clashing against the sea, the principality is teeming with designer stores and historic hotels competing with each other in grandiosity. After catching a glimpse of the legendary Casino de Monte-Carlo, I ascend to the Prince's Palace. I'm definitely not the only one for whom this edifice immediately calls to mind Grace Kelly, the Hollywood darling who married into the House of Grimaldi, which rules over Monaco to the present day. From the top of this cliff, the opulent principality looks like a beehive. Monaco is also one of the most densely populated states in the world.

Travelling back to Nice, on a whim I decide to make a stop in Villefranche-sur-Mer. Little do I know that the highlight of my whole trip awaits me just around the corner. As I arrive at one of the intersections in the town's historical centre, everywhere I look I see a scene so impossibly picturesque it ought to be on a postcard. And the best part is, aside from a local butcher and pots of flowers all around, I have the narrow, sloping streets all to myself. And I haven't yet mentioned the dream-like coastline! Little surprise, though, because Villefranche-sur-Mer has the filmography of an A-list Hollywood actor, with highlights including An Affair to Remember and The Bourne Identity.

After feasting my eyes on this town, it's time to devour the local cuisine as well. In my quest for a bona fide Niçoise salad I find myself at Chez Acchiardo, which is hidden in an alleyway in Vieux Nice. The waiter, who could easily be a stunt double for Vincent Cassel, escorts me to a table decorated with a chequered napkin and wine glasses. Established in 1927, this family affair is famous for two things: hospitality and exquisitely executed classic French fare. After having a trip through the wine list that abounds in local varietals and emptying the bread basket (the introduction to every French meal), a huge and beautiful Niçoise salad arrives at my table. I almost feel sorry to take a fork and disturb a dish that looks more like a work of art that should be hanging on the wall. The clientèle is an animated bunch, ranging from a group of professionals still wearing their conference badges and an elderly Swedish couple to quite a few locals hanging out by the bar. A nine-course meal at a Michelin-starred venue is OK, but I'd rather eat just bread and a salad in a place that's full of authenticity and sincere locals. Like the cat that ate the canary, or the Northerner who has gotten a hit of Vitamin D and savoured some Mediterranean cuisine, yet again I catch myself with a smug smile on my face.

INSIDER'S VIEW

When visiting the French Riviera, it's not difficult to come across the vibrant Art Deco posters made by Eric Garence. Since 2017 he has been the official illustrator and ambassador of the Côte d'Azur France brand. His illustrations are also used by brands such as Fragonard and Galeries Lafayette as well as the city of Cannes, the Principality of Monaco, and the commune of Dieulefit. 'My posters are evocations of magical moments quintessential to the region. On the French Riviera, colours change every hour. I try to reflect the same magic in my posters.'

How do you recommend one enjoy the Côte d'Azur in the colder months of the year?

It's the perfect destination if you can't choose between the beach or a ski trip. I have a poster called Ski or Paddle that features a girl in a bikini paddling a longboard in Antibes, and in the background you can see snow-covered mountaintops. The poster encapsulates the French Riviera during wintertime – it's just a few hours' drive to the ski resorts, and later you can catch some rays on the beaches of Antibes, Nice, and Cannes! It's the best of both worlds. Regarding ski resorts, I suggest Isola 2000. While there, climb the Cime de Sistrun – the view is out of this world!

How would you describe the locals?

The most suitable adjective for us is 'lucky'. We have the sun, the sea, culture, and sporting activities available all year round.

What places do you suggest for dining?

I love La Tonelle on the Île Saint-Honorat near Cannes. The rich flavour of its Mediterranean-inspired dishes is worth the boat ride to the island. In Èze there's La Table de Patrick Raingeard, a Michelin-starred restaurant that boasts creative cuisine. But my favourite place is Le Saint Paul, located just behind the port in Nice. Here the scrumptious French cuisine is accompanied by a beautiful view over the seaside and a large terrace.

What's a place one cannot leave the Côte d'Azur without visiting?

The first ones that pop into my mind are the medieval town of Saint-Paul-de-Vence, the Chapelle Saint-Pierre covered in Jean Cocteau's murals in Villefranche, and the Fragonard Museum in Grasse dedicated to the painter Jean-Honoré Fragonard.

And an experience not to miss?

For an authentic taste of the Côte d'Azur, I suggest a cooking class at the Notes de Cuisine restaurant in La Colle-sur-Loup. Chef Laurence Duperthuy opens her cooking workshop and allows everyone to cook and taste the products of the Côte d'Azur in a warm and friendly setting.

What should one bring home from Nice as a souvenir?

Obviously, one of my posters, which you can find at the Wemood Gallery and the Capsule store at the Cap 3000 shopping centre! The one with Nice's blue chairs is an absolute classic.

DELIVERING COMFORT

Well-thought-out business planning, a good selection of favourite local eateries, and attentive customer service – that's how the Wolt online food delivery service has managed to win the hearts of Europe's foodies. Juhani Mykkänen, the company's generalist co-founder, takes us behind the scenes.

A sea of sneakers and Dr. Martens boots greet me when I arrive at Wolt's headquarters in downtown Helsinki. On the other side of the foyer is a wide couch occupied by two guys working with a laptop. After taking off my own shoes and passing a spacious kitchen lined with boxes of Club-Mate, I enter the office of Juhani Mykkänen, the generalist co-founder of Wolt.

It would be surprising if Wolt's office felt less relaxed; after all, here they're maintaining a service that makes people's daily lives a bit more convenient. A few taps on your phone screen, and half an hour later your desired meal arrives at your doorstep. Founded in 2014 in the Finnish capital, Wolt has four million users in 20 countries and 150 million euros of funding. The company is Wired's Hottest Startup in Europe, Apple's Editors' Choice winner in 2015, the Nordic Startup Awards' company of the year for 2017, and every millennial's friend in need.

Wolt was founded by six peers, one of whom is sitting in front of me. Dressed in a tan flannel shirt, the dark-blond 35-year-old smiles and candidly confesses that only now are they starting to have a clue about what they're doing. A former journalist at the Helsingin Sanomat newspaper and Radio Helsinki, as well as an avid backpacker with a master's degree in knowledge-intensive business, Mykkänen is not a pretentious tech shark but instead someone you'd like to have a beer with on Friday evening.

How did the idea of Wolt emerge?

The idea of Wolt goes back to 2012. My old friend Miki Kuusi (one of the co-founders and the CEO of Wolt – Ed.) had recently come back from Silicon Valley, where he had tried out a ridesharing app, something that was still brand-new at the time. We thought of how cool it would be if you could also get meals with a couple taps on your phone. That was 2014, and we felt that no one had yet gotten the online food delivering service's user experience to the right level – we felt it was now or never.

We gathered a team of six people. While the others built the product, I was trying to get the restaurants on board, attracting the clientèle, recruiting, doing marketing and PR. Hitherto, I've held more than ten positions at Wolt. Initially, whenever we launched a new area, we put a generalist in charge there for the first few months, and that was usually me. For instance, when we expanded into Stockholm in 2016, I was in charge of the business there for the first few months, and then we figured out what kind of person to hire for the job.

What was the first reaction of restaurateurs and customers to Wolt in Helsinki?

For the first few months, we offered only a pick-up service. You had a list of places and you could order and pay via the app – all you needed to do was pick up the food yourself at the venue, without standing in line and so on. Everybody liked how the app felt, but customers were not using the pickup feature enough. We concluded that we should just go ahead and introduce the delivery option. Delivery service was on our minds from the start, but we had first hoped to succeed without it, as a pure tech company that links diners with restaurateurs – in that way, without the logistical side, we could have grown the fastest.

How do you decide in which cities to launch Wolt?

After Helsinki, we went into Turku and Tampere. Then, in 2016, into Stockholm and Tallinn. Now it's 20 countries, 70 cities in total. The latest edition is Cyprus, which opened in January 2020. Regarding our expansion strategy, here's an analogy: Imagine there's a group of friends hanging around at the beach. Someone brings a boom box playing music, and it becomes even more fun. But then another person arrives with a boombox, and now the sounds from the two boxes clash, and it's annoying. In other words, we're going into cities where we're the first ones to bring the music, where the market of online food delivery is not that saturated yet. For instance, we have no intention of going into London, where the streets are already filled with food deliverers.

Who decides which restaurants will be available through Wolt?

Ultimately, we have restaurants that people actually want to order from. Each city has its own list of categories that reflects the city's overall food scene. For each category we want the place that supposedly offers the best of that particular fare and a handful of good-value-for-money places. Of course, the people at HQ can't know which are the best burgers in Budapest, so we gather a great local team and rely on their expertise. If Wolt doesn't offer a place that the city residents like, eventually someone will recommend it by sending us a message through customer support or it will come to us in a 'word on the street' kind of way.

What kind of restaurants don't get into Wolt?

We don't work with restaurants that have a reputation for poor-quality food and service. Likewise, if the restaurant is already a Wolt partner and we get various complaints about it, which means Wolt has four million users in 20 countries and 150 million euros of funding.

'Wolt is not the best for fine-dining restaurants. You don't want to eat a 30-euro steak that has sat in a takeaway container for 20 minutes,' says Juhani Mykkänen.

Some cities have an affection for certain foods, for instance, Tampere loves its chicken wings that they're not taking Wolt's clients seriously, and if kind feedback doesn't improve the situation, then we might end our collaboration. For us, the most important thing is that the customer gets a top-quality meal that's what they ordered and it arrives on time.

In addition, Wolt is not the best for fine-dining restaurants. You don't want to eat a 30-euro steak that has sat in a takeaway container for 20 minutes. When you go to a luxury restaurant, you pay for an overall experience. Food delivery apps are for good-quality, reasonably priced food, such as sushi, burgers, tacos – comfort food with a healthy twist.

We launched Wolt in Stockholm with the impression that people there like a bit more sophistication, so we gathered a number of white-tablecloth restaurants for Wolt. But Stockholmers didn't order from them. When we switched to simpler cuisine, like in our first Finnish cities, then people immediately started ordering more.

What are the main differences of Wolt in each city? Some cities have an affection for certain foods, for instance, Tampere loves its chicken wings. A single restaurant can also cause a local trend. For instance, in Copenhagen there's Jagger, which made burgers into a cult in that city. In capitals, people in general want healthier options, like more vegan options. Overall, the most frequently ordered dishes are high-quality burgers, sushi, bowls, salads, street food, and gourmet pizza. Regarding client behaviour traits, there are two peak times of the day in almost all of Wolt's destinations: lunch and evening. The only city that doesn't have a rush hour around midday is Copenhagen, where employers usually offer their staff a lunch buffet. On the whole, weekends are the busiest in all the cities. The rush starts early on Friday: pre-parties, dinners with friends, then the morning-after cravings and lazy family evenings.

Amazon's online food delivery service Amazon Restaurants was shut down last year, proving that it's not easy for online food delivery services to survive even if you're a tech giant. What has helped Wolt to thrive?

Many companies have seen an opportunity in online food delivery and have acted quickly, hiring large teams, quickly expanding geographically, investing large amounts in marketing. However, many of them have found it hard to become sustainable in the long term. We think very carefully before each new step we take. Over time, we have developed a great logistics algorithm that enables couriers to earn more with the same amount of work, and also to find the best people for each position. Big-name investors, such as Iconiq Capital, Mark Zuckerberg of Facebook, Jack Dorsey of Twitter, and Reid Hoffman of LinkedIn, have invested in us for the most part because of our thoughtful strategy.

And when it comes to attracting customers, I believe it's about building a product that exceeds people's expectations, because that's when word of mouth happens. Wolt has become popular because it's easy to use, your food arrives in around 30 minutes, plus we've actually gathered a good bunch of eateries, and if mistakes happen, our support makes it up by giving free Wolt credits. To sum up, Wolt's success is a recipe of a user-friendly app, great customer support, and great restaurant selection.

How are things in Wolt's hometown, Helsinki? I haven't noticed any Wolt couriers on the streets! There are two thousand couriers in Finland, but during the cold months they mainly use cars as their means of transportation. And it's not mandatory to wear Wolt's uniform in Finland, so they're not always so noticeable. Actually, I think it's also one of our assets that we started in Finland, where the population is scattered around and labour costs are high – overall, it’s a challenging environment for a business like ours. Having started out in a more difficult environment has probably helped us succeed at making a profit in more densely populated cities with lower wages. We’re like a runner who has been jogging in the mountains, where the air is thin, and then coming down to the lowlands and realising, hey, our practice is paying off!

Some delivery apps have opened so-called ghost kitchens (delivery-only venues); other industry businesses, such as the Bolt ridesharing app, have introduced a food delivery option – Bolt Food. What’s Wolt’s future strategy?

We’ve considered the idea of opening ghost kitchens, but we can’t say anything more about that at the moment. As for new services, I think that the main task is to maintain the quality of our existing service, rather than losing focus, and then looking in other directions only after a while. Our goal for the future is to become a sustainable European tech company and get listed on the public stock exchange in a few years. Moreover, we will open in a few more countries this year, so stay tuned!

Some say that food delivery apps are to blame for the struggles brick-and-mortar restaurants are having.

I believe it’s quite the opposite. Let’s take restaurants in Finland as an example. The average restaurant in Finland makes 90,000 euros more each year in Wolt sales. I have a story here: some months ago I was at this venue that serves great Mexican dishes, but it’s a little off the beaten path. When the owner came to know that I’m from Wolt, she broke into tears – she had almost gone bankrupt because of the disadvantageous location, but opening the business to Wolt had saved her restaurant.

Overall, the shift that is happening is from grocery stores to restaurants. Because now, instead of going to the grocery store after work and cooking for ourselves, we just head home and order in.

Your customers are mostly millennial. What are the conundrums in catering for them?

The reasons that make it hard to cater to millennials are also the ones that make companies like Wolt successful. If the app works and customer support works, millennials will really appreciate it and spread the word. If the delivered food looks nice, they’ll post a picture on social media, which means free advertising. But if there are bugs in the app and the food wasn’t nice, they will also tell others about it. In other words, do a good job and millennials will be grateful and help your business to grow; do it poorly, and they will punish you.

Netflix is replacing cinema, Tinder is replacing mingling at bars, Wolt is replacing grabbing dinner. The result is that millennials can’t interact with other people.

Today everyone faces the same quandary – we feel we don’t communicate enough in real life, but at the same time we all love to binge-watch Game of Thrones and order in. But the coin has two sides: you can also order Wolt with your friends and watch Netflix together, and I bet that in the past five years people have been on more dates than ever thanks to dating apps.

INTERVIEW / February

By having food delivered at the press of a button, it could be said that delivery apps are contributing to growing obesity rates.

People have an option. Either they blame Wolt in supporting their laziness, or they take the time that Wolt gives them and use it wisely. Wolt makes sure you don't have to choose between buying groceries and making a nice meal or going to the gym. Now you can work out while Wolt takes care of dinner.

Food delivered in takeaway containers means a lot of waste. What is Wolt doing to reduce its effect on the environment? We really want all our restaurants to offer biodegradable packaging, but that's largely up to them. In many countries, we have a special category promoting restaurants that offer eco-friendly packaging. In fact, since November 2019, all Wolt deliveries are 100% carbon emission compensated. We calculated the total emissions of all deliveries made from day one that were done using vehicles such as cars, bikes, scooters, and motorbikes, and we partnered up with South Pole, an industry leader in climate action, to compensate those emissions in two ways: first by financing the planting of 42,000 trees in Vichada, Colombia, and second, by funding the protection of 150 hectares of forest in Envira, Brazil.

What's in the cards for online food delivery?

We actually tried robots as couriers in Estonia in 2016. It was fun, but the conclusion was that people want their meals transferred right to their doorstep, not out by the gate or in the foyer, and climbing stairs and over thresholds was a bit of a challenge for the robots. Thus, I don't think robots will be door-to-door couriers in the near future. Also, they didn't necessarily prove to be more efficient. But I do foresee that pizza making, for instance, could soon be automated, and there will be a case for drone deliveries as well. But I don't want to predict anything more – the world changes in unthinkable ways.

Before Wolt, you worked in journalism for six years. How was it for you to move to the food tech industry?

Actually, my academic background is in business, but I went into journalism because it's a profession where you can meet a lot of people, constantly learn something new, bring important questions to the fore, and affect opinions. For the last two years of my career in media I was the chief editor for a weekly magazine where I had to resolve how to make better content with less and less staff, whilst not resorting to clickbait. It was exhausting! I quit, and then after half a year of conversations with my friend Miki, the idea of Wolt started to take shape. I immediately believed in it and knew I wanted to be part of it.

Do you miss journalism?

I still have some journalistic pet projects. For instance, each summer I travel to festivals in Finland and interview people dressed in funny outfits. For years I also wrote a column for Helsingin Sanomat about timely issues ranging from evolutionary theory to equal rights. I'm sure I'll go back to writing at some point.

You've backpacked in 70 countries and tried bungee jumping, paragliding, parachuting, and all kinds of other extreme sports. Where does your urge for adventure come from?

I have a credo – when you're facing a dilemma, always choose the one option that leads to a better story. Should I quit my job for a new adventure or not? Should I jump from that bridge, or is it too risky? Being adventurous, meeting new people, and exploring new places also runs in my family. My dad's been to almost 150 countries. I still backpack sometimes, but now I usually rent a car and do a road trip instead – it's a better option if you're time-strapped, because you don't have to rely on train or bus schedules.

What's your regular order with Wolt?

Wolt has nearly four million users, and I'm among the top three customers in terms of highest number of deliveries. In Helsinki there's a place called La Torrefazione, which has these incredible salads with fresh mozzarella, air-dried ham, and cashew nuts – so simple, yet so perfect. I've ordered that more than a hundred times. bo

MILAN DESIGN GUIDE

Words by Lana Jūra
Publicity photos and by iStock

It doesn't matter whether you're an industry professional or just a lover of good design – the Milan design scene is overwhelming. Take a moment to unwind and enrich your time in the city with these design-focused museums, showrooms, and restaurants.

Milano Italia – that's what they say today when accenting the Milanese origin of design items. It's an origin that guarantees high quality, style, and good value. The northern Italian city is truly the heart of global design. We rush to Milan when we want to find inspiration and tap into the joy of creation. Our destination is Milan when we want to see new design, steal a few ideas, establish contacts, or simply indulge in the allure of beauty. Today Milan is an internationally recognised citadel of design that sets global trends. But how did the Milanese acquire such a venerable title?

A SENSE OF BEAUTY AND TRADITIONS

Milan's economic and financial strength is clearly visible. Italian industrial power has always been concentrated here, but the city also rests on a foundation of grand cultural traditions formed by a unique heritage of art, music, and architecture. The city has always been internationally oriented, with young artists and talent from all around the world finding their niche here and establishing contacts with industry, financiers, and patrons.

Milan also takes pride in its long-standing and prestigious art and industry exhibitions, which attract global businesses, creative minds, and tourists. As one of the most significant cultural and social phenomena of the past century, the field of design did not emerge from nothing. It was born along with industrial growth, innovation, and craftsmanship; it developed hand in hand with artisans who dare to experiment and craftsmen who know how to, for example, give leather a silky softness and add exquisite nuance to a designer's prototypes. This close link between design and production is the secret behind the Italian phenomenon.

◀ Milan is an international hub for fashion and design.

Industrial design flourished during the post-war economic boom, when the mass production of furniture and household goods took off. Businesses both big and small employed the services of designers. It was important to create not only a product but a beautiful product. This sense of aesthetics combined with the concept of high-quality industrial production inspired the genius designer minds in Milan of that era: Franco Albini, Achille Castiglioni, Angelo Mangiarotti, Vico Magistretti, Ettore Sottsass, and many others.

By the 1960s and 70s, Italian interior and product design had achieved cult-like status in terms of stylishness. Perhaps it's no surprise, but most of the masters of industrial design had studied architecture (most often at the Politecnico di Milano) and expertly combined the two fields. By the 1970s and 80s, iconic Italian fashion houses were also contributing to design. Prada, Ferragamo, Valentino, and Gucci were joined by the super-talented Versace, Armani, Ferré, Moschino, and Dolce & Gabbana, who made a point of locating their studios and infrastructure in Milan.

GIO PONTI AND OTHER GREAT RESIDENTS OF MILAN

One of the most brilliant personalities in modern Italian design and architecture was Gio Ponti (1891–1979). Born in Milan, he also founded Domus, the world's most influential architecture and design magazine. While working as an architect at the Richard Ginori porcelain factory in Florence during the interwar period (an era that gave rise to avantgarde architecture and art movements throughout Europe), Ponti was one of the first to give new life to ancient styles and traditions by incorporating them into contemporary and innovative products. The lamps he designed (Bilia [1932], produced by Fontana Arte) still stand on our tables, and the elegant Torre Pirelli, or Pirellone, skyscraper he designed in 1960 is still an elegant highlight on the Milanese skyline. We still sit on Ponti's ultra-light chairs (699 Superleggera [1957], prod. Cassina), which can also be seen at the Triennale di Milano design museum as iconic examples of fine design. The museum's permanent collection includes the most representative masterpieces of Italian design of the 20th and 21st centuries.

Can we still capture something of that creative spirit today? In Milan, yes, definitely. All you need to do is visit the studio-museums of the masters. The Fondazione Franco Albini, for example, displays furniture, sketches, and projects by the great architect and designer Franco Albini (1905–1977) as well as his work table. They all seem so alive, as if he had just left the room to get an espresso.

Catch a similar feeling at the studio of Achille Castiglioni (1918–2002), which exhibits prototypes of his work, including Arco (1962, prod. Flos), the famous arched lamp that caused a revolution in lighting design. The studio of Vico Magistretti (1920–2006) also exudes an atmosphere of active work. The conference room is illuminated by his Sonora lamp (1976, prod. Oluce), and the table is surrounded by his brightly coloured Carimate, Selene, and Maui chairs. Sketches and photographs line the walls. Magistretti, who could trace his Milanese roots back ten generations, famously said that an object of good design will serve forever; it is beyond fashionable trends.

If you feel like looking deeper into the past, visit the museums in the Circuito delle Case Museo network, which comprises the private residences of four major patrons of art. The Poldi Pezzoli Museum located in a Neoclassical-style building very close to the Teatro alla Scala, for instance, is one of the most famous home-museums in the world. The Italian aristocrat and art collector Gian Giacomo Poldi Pezzoli (1822–1879) donated the palace and his collection of Renaissance art to the city of Milan, thus making these paintings, sculptures, lace, embroidery, jewellery, porcelain, glass (including antique handmade Murano blown glass), furniture, and historical weapons available to the public.

SHOWROOMS WORTH VISITING

The grandest design event of the year is Milan Design Week and the Salone del Mobile.Milano exhibition, which this year will take place on April 21–26. Already in its 59th edition, this, the largest design business and communication platform in the world, will bring together industry leaders from across the globe at the Rho Milano expo centre. Salone del Mobile.Milano has in fact become a recognised export commodity, with editions now also organised in Moscow and Shanghai.

Milan Design Week is open to the public. During the event, the celebration of beauty also spreads to the city's streets, opens the doors of Milan's showrooms and galleries, and brings new life to the city's courtyards, old factories, warehouses, universities, concert halls, and historical palazzos.

In addition to the design week's saturated programme, it's worth taking a stroll through the narrow streets of the Brera district and peeking in on the relaxing, green courtyards with vertical gardens. A number of famous showrooms are located in Brera, such as Rubelli Casa, Donghia, and the exclusive fabrics brand Dedar Milano. Here you can also find fine porcelain by Manifattura Richard Ginori 1735 of Florence, traditional patterns by Etro Home, and extravagance by Moroso.

And now, for the icing on the cake! In the very heart of Brera, on the ground floor of a sophisticated old building at Via Largo Claudio Treves 5, is the Memphis | Post Design Gallery featuring design masterpieces by the Memphis Group. The avantgarde group, named after the legendary blues number by Bob Dylan and founded in Milan in the 1980s by the equally legendary master of Italian design Ettore Sottsass (1917–2007), shocked the world of design with its super-bright colours, unbounded asymmetry, and unprecedented forms, materials, and patterns. The exposition at the gallery contains a wide range of iconic objects by Sottsass and his colleagues. The gallery is currently also showing Flip-Flop, a collection of rugs and ceramics designed by Roger Selden.

There are a few other streets in Milan that every design connoisseur ought to know. One of them is Via della Spiga, where among the many fashion brands you'll also find the Nilufar Gallery, an exclusive furniture and accessories showroom that brings together in a single space rare items by classics such as Gio Ponti, Piero Fornasetti, and Hans Wegner as well as work by contemporary designers Martino Gamper, Derek Castiglioni, Bethan Laura Wood, and others. The Nilufar Depot, a large exhibition hall in a former factory, opened just a few years ago and showcases magical interiors and their various stories, colours, and moods.

A number of well-known design brands have also settled on Via Durini. The street even hosts its own Durini Design Week during Milan Design Week. Here you'll find elegant Fendi Casa and the refined furniture, lighting, and accessory salons of Natuzzi Italia, Porro, Cassina Milano, B&B Italia, and Barovier & Toso as well as designer kitchens by Arclinea and Binova. Likewise, head to Via Durini to get a closer look at the unusual work of famous Italian design diva Paola Navone. In response to the sleek, ornate style of most of the other showrooms on the street, her Gervasoni showroom accents the simple white-washed brick walls and grey stone floors of the space. It's a story about the history of an old Milanese building complemented by the charm of the furniture designed by Navone.

GASTRONOMIC TREATS

It's no surprise that Milan is also the place to enjoy one Michelin-starred restaurant after another. Here, high-end cuisine combines with sophisticated interiors to offer the pinnacle of enjoyment. But, according to Italian traditions, first comes the aperitif! Where should one go? Well, of course, the Galleria Vittorio Emanuele in the very heart of the city. Here, the Camparino bar, established in 1915 by the Campari family (known for that bright red liqueur), has just reopened following a renovation led by grand master of architecture and design Piero Lissoni and with great piety for the locale's history and heritage. While the soul of the bar remains Campari cocktails, its new food concept (which includes Pan'cot, a special type of roasted bread) has been created by star chef Davide Oldani.

One of the brightest stars on Milan's restaurant scene is Seta at the Mandarin Oriental Hotel. If you happen to be at the Teatro alla Scala or on Via Montenapoleone, the refined restaurant boasting two Michelin stars and a host of other awards is just a few minutes' walk away. It's located in the courtyard of the hotel and adheres to a smart dress code. Seta's chef, Antonio Guida, is one of the most renowned chefs in the country, drawing inspiration from his native southern Italy but also adding Tuscan and French flavours to his creations. The restaurant's elegant interior is the work of the famous duo of Antonio Citterio and Patricia Viel, who have with this project reached the summit of Milanese creativity and craftsmanship. How else to describe the Saletta Duomo, a room in the restaurant that's decorated with plates, wall panels, and furniture from the collection of the grandiose Milanese artist Fornasetti?

That said, it's also worth seeking out the nearest trattoria for some authentic home-style Italian food. One thing's for certain: it will be delicious! Established by friends Diego Rossi and Pietro Caroli, who share a love of the culinary arts, Trippa Milano offers an old-time atmosphere. The trattoria has more than 20,000 followers on Instagram, the owners have designed the simple interior themselves, and you'd better make a reservation if you hope to get a table. The secret to success here is fresh, high-quality fish and meat combined with traditional Italian vegetables.

When in Milan, there always seems to be too little time...and lots of energy spent. Therefore, a quick cappuccino and croissant at the new Sei.it bistro-bakery in the centre of the city hits the spot. It offers a huge variety of traditional cakes, savoury delicacies, salads, and snacks. The inviting environment with wood and marble tables is illuminated by unique Karman lights and also features panels of real moss. To recharge with a super-nutritious bouquet of fruits and vegetables, head to the new Healthy Color café. Its visual concept revolves around the optic wall, floor, and table patterns created by street artist Motorefisico brightened by colourful neon signs. Fascinating and energising! As one would expect in the creative laboratory that is Milan. bo average Dane burns nearly six kilograms of candles a year), fireplaces, woolen blankets, knitwear, oversize scarves, delicious pastries, good coffee, spending time with people you love, and also enjoying moments alone with yourself. It's all about appreciating the small and simple things, such as warm pockets during a winter walk, a hug, an extra piece of cake, or the Danish poppy seed rolls called tebirkes. After all, you only live once!

The dark and long Danish winter is not usually the happiest season, so this is the time that hygge really comes into force. While typically associated with the indoors, a walk outside in nature can also be very rewarding (remember to have some hot chocolate or a bowl of delicious porridge afterwards). The main thing is no stress and no rush, especially while exploring some must-see landmarks. Consider visiting a smaller, more quiet local site. Have you ever wondered about the success of Scandinavian design and why Danes mostly dress in black and neutral-coloured layers? First, less is more. Second, black absorbs heat and keeps the body warmer.

To taste hygge in Copenhagen, choose a cosy café offering good coffee, great pastries, books, blankets, and a fireplace, such as The Living Room, Paludan, or Retro Café. For a proper bowl of porridge served all day long, go to Grød, but for a relaxing hyggelig dinner with a view of the sea at Bellevue Beach, try Den Gule Cottage.

Because hygge stands for a homey atmosphere, experience the lifestyle by staying at a hotel or apartment where you can cook a satisfying dinner yourself. Head to the iconic Torvehallerne farmers' market for fresh local ingredients, homemade goods, and Danish delicacies to bring home.

Hygge (pronounced hoo-gah) seems to be one of those bizarre words heard many times, but what does it actually mean? Dozens of books have been written to reveal its essence, but nothing compares to experiencing it for yourself. A few years ago, hygge was even added to the Oxford English Dictionary, and in 2016 it was named the second-most popular word of the year after 'Brexit'. Some say that hygge defined as comfort and well-being dates back to the early 19th century, while its connotation of being covered and protected from the outside world can be traced all the way back to the Middle Ages. Nowadays, this philosophy of Danish happiness and cosiness has spread around the globe.

Danes are regularly listed as one of the happiest people in the world, so they really know how to live life in a hyggelig (hygge-like) manner. Some of the main keywords and accessories to make hygge work its magic include candles (the

SWEDISH LAGOM: CONSCIOUSNESS AND

on almost every corner in Stockholm. In fact, lagom goes hand in hand with fika, the typical afternoon coffee break taken in good company. More than a break, it's a relaxing ritual of busy Swedes that's easy and pleasant to adopt while exploring the capital city.

The key thing a traveller might learn from lagom is to not overschedule a long-awaited vacation. Don't try to fit a seven-day sightseeing plan into three days. Instead, enjoy the quality of your time and don't just tick landmarks off a checklist. The golden rule is to leave some space for spontaneity and not overplan every minute; see what the day, the weather, and your mood will bring. Swedes are particularly keen on spending their free time doing outdoor activities, whether it's camping, jogging the streets of Stockholm, or heading out of town for a long walk and picnic. If winter is too extreme for that, just set aside some time for a digital-free afternoon and some fresh air.

For a mindful lagom moment, head to the Stockholm Public Library, built in 1923 by Swedish architect Gunnar Asplund. Its main hall, covered floor to ceiling with two million volumes, is particularly impressive due to its domed ceiling and rotunda shape. It's the perfect place to see locals absorbed in their reading and take some great photos.

To balance the outdoors with cultural engagement, head to Artipelag, a cultural hub in the Värmdö area (20 minutes from central Stockholm) where art meets nature. Expect stunning nature, hiking trails, glittering waters, untouched forest, and rocks alongside a spacious art gallery and two panoramic restaurants.

Lagom (pronounced lah-gom) – which means ‘just the right amount’ or ‘not too little, not too much’ – is a Swedish form of balanced living. The earliest mention of the term dates to the 17th century, when it meant something similar to law and common sense. Roughly speaking, lagom stands for clever consumption, sustainability, and environmental consciousness. But don't worry, being lagom doesn't require you to ride a bicycle in the middle of winter.

This Swedish lifestyle theory stands for keeping things perfectly simple, something also illustrated by the English proverb ‘enough is as good as a feast’. Lately, lagom has become even more popular than hygge. If hygge allows you to eat another muffin, lagom would suggest asking yourself whether you really want or need that muffin. Take your time and enjoy just a single delicious cinnamon bun (kanelbullar) or marzipan roll at a stylish café like those found

FINNISH SISU AND KALSARIKÄNNIT:
BALANCE OF INNER STRENGTH

For a true Finnish experience, the Allas Sea Pool is the best swimming pool and sauna in Helsinki.

Fly to Helsinki
from €119

This is the story of two contrasts that unite in a single Finnish personality: sisu is stoic determination and inner grit, while kalsarikännit is a rather laid-back state of mind. Kalsarikännit describes the situation when nothing in the world could drag you away from spending the evening alone on your couch, dressed in extra comfortable clothes and sipping a favourite drink. Sisu, on the other hand, speaks directly to the inflexible Finnish national character and the inner persistence, stamina, resolve, and guts that sometimes seem fuelled by mystical powers. Similar to the British 'stiff upper lip', sisu stimulates people to keep going no matter what and combines emotional intelligence with determination.

In part, Finns owe their sisu to the harsh Arctic climate. Over the centuries, they've learned to live with and gain the maximum benefit from the extreme cold. They genuinely respect nature and seize every opportunity to dive into the silence it provides. Nature's relaxing beauty helps them to disconnect and return to the basics in order to come back recharged and fully prepared for life's challenges.

But we can all learn to train our own sisu and thus balance our inner strength. To begin with, simply follow the main Finnish leisure activity: a hot sauna followed by an ice-cold winter swim to temper the character and strengthen the body. This fun, healthy, and relaxing self-care tradition is available on almost every corner of Helsinki, so no excuses!

The Allas Sea Pool complex on the docks near Market Square features magnificent saunas with sauna-yoga classes, restaurants, and three open-air swimming pools: one with unheated water from the Baltic Sea, a 25-metre pool heated to 27°C all year round, and a children's pool. Don't miss the moonlight swims, including the traditional Finnish manner of swimming – naked!

Helsinki's Central Park is a great place to establish a relationship with Finnish nature and indulge your introvert side. The forested park stretches for ten kilometres from Laakso near the city centre to the northern city limits in Haltiala. It offers several nature trails of varying length for an invigorating outdoor stroll through the lush and wild woodlands. Maybe you'll even see some Siberian flying squirrels or other animals amongst the large spruce trees. And once your solo kalsarikännit phase is over, there's nothing better than going out to a crowded karaoke bar to blow off some steam. Test your singing skills at the modest yet legendary Pataassa, the peculiar Restroom set in a former WC built for the 1952 Summer Olympics in Helsinki, the less crowded Anna K, or the famous Erottaja Bar.

ÍSBÍLTÚR: CHERISH
THE MOMENT

Winter for Icelanders is not about staying locked up indoors.

Fly to Reykjavik
roundtrip

Tucked away from the rest of northern Europe across the wide waters of the Atlantic Ocean, residents of the 'land of fire and ice' follow similar hygge traditions borrowed from the Danes yet have rather unusual local rituals as well. One of these, ísbíltúr, refers to a road trip that should obligatorily end with ice cream, no matter where you decide to go and how long the trip will last. Put on your favourite soundtrack or start a pleasant conversation with your partners in crime, and off you go. Born and raised in a rough climate, an ability to withstand cold weather is part of Icelanders' DNA. No wonder that they enjoy ice cream at the most unfriendly, low winter temperatures just as much as they do in summer.

Ísbíltúr (pronounced ease-beel-tour) is more than a random act; it's a national pastime. The key element is to come to an agreement regarding your final destination. Choose from plenty of welcoming ice cream shops in Reykjavik, or look beyond the city limits. The ice cream shop scene in Reykjavik is impressive. Valdís by the picturesque old harbour is a trendsetter of scoopable ice cream and offers different flavours each day, such as salted liquorice or peanut and caramel. Arna, located near Gróttu Lighthouse on the edge of the capital city, is known for its lactose-free ice cream. Founded in 1971, Ísbúð Vesturbæjar serves creamy, milky classics.

Once you've decided on a destination, start moving and make as much of a detour and as many pit stops as possible to explore the area. Tourists can transpose the ísbíltúr idea into a spontaneous walking tour across the city, while renting a car lets you see the majestic natural sites of this country. It's all about the process. However, the final destination and the way back home with a wintry, non-melting portion of ice cream in your hands is just as rewarding and delicious.

As the ísbíltúr ritual proves, winter for Icelanders is not about staying locked up indoors. And this can be considered an essential part of the hygge philosophy: the enjoyment of satisfying things in good company, all the while remaining strongly linked to one's place of residence. This is why Icelanders are masters of cherishing the moment. Embracing the power of nature all year long is the local secret to well-being. To that end, countless thermal spas and retreats scattered around the Reykjavik area help their guests keep things in balance, unwind from stress, and stay present. And if you happen to catch some northern lights on your way, consider yourself an ísbíltúr champion. bo

ELEGY OF TIME

This atmospheric apartment in the heart of Warsaw offers an elegant cocktail of custom-made, vintage, and contemporary solutions framed in a mixture of Polish, French, Italian, and Scandinavian influences.

Located on the banks of the Vistula River, the Powisle district is full of beautiful parks and elegant pre-war architectural gems. This 96-square-metre apartment in a Neoclassical building built in 1931 and designed by Feliks Michalski belongs to a couple in which one of the homeowners is a writer and a devotee of French culture. To bring new life to their remodelled home, interior designer Marta Chrapka of Colombe Design created a graceful, multilayered poetry of space. First, the perfect base layer: plaster mouldings to improve the wall proportions, elegant boiserie panelling, and high skirting painted in warm, earthy tones with natural clay paint. Mid-century accents and modern statements in lighting solutions and decor complete the spaces.

Interior designer
 Marta Chrapka

► The uniting element in the ‘white plaster stained with rust’ living room is Chrapka’s tailor-made teak cabinet that stretches along two walls and ends with a marble and brass console. The vintage golden rhubarb-leaf lamp was purchased in Paris. The mid-century modern theme is maintained with a vintage coffee table set on a Moroccan Berber rug.

►► The signature two-wing doors made of solid walnut separating the day and night zones are inspired by the Cracovian style (the homeowner was born in Krakow). Lachert doorknobs add extra grace. Oak parquet in a herringbone pattern adheres to the tradition of Polish pre-war apartment flooring. The ceiling shines with a brass and glass Plate and Sphere lamp by Atelier Areti.

VINTAGE

WALNUT

▼ The former kitchen was turned into a reading room that also serves as a guest bedroom. The designer calls the smallest room of the house a 'rabbit hole', which perfectly describes its palette. Painted in darker tones of brown and grey, it contrasts with the other sun-kissed spaces. A mid-century Prouve desk by Vitra matches the modern Gubi Beetle chair.

▲ 'My biggest inspiration was Joseph Frank and his spotted and wallpapered cabinets. It's mainly visible in the kitchen and bedroom details,' says Chrapka. To honour the design icon, Colombe's custom-made dining table is accompanied by Svenskt Tenn beech-walnut Chair 300s designed by Frank himself in 1925.

BUILT-IN

▼ At first, Chrapka wanted to set the bathroom where new cabinet now stands. 'But there's a daybed in the niche, and I hadn't realised that this is the basic piece of furniture in a writer's room. After sitting at the desk for a long time, it's necessary to lie down and think for a while. I feel this room is my favourite that I've ever designed, and the bathroom is the tiniest one I've designed,' admits Chrapka. In the bathroom, a grooved custom-made cupboard with a red onyx counter steals the show.

ONYX

▲ 'The biggest problem we struggled with was the shape of the rooms. Each has a slanted wall, and that creates difficulties, especially in the bedrooms. The solution was to create straight built-in furniture that combines a niche for the bed and wardrobes or bookshelves,' explains the designer. Here, a Knoll bed is nestled into a built-in nook decorated with wallpaper by William Morris, the pioneer of the 19th-century Arts and Crafts movement.

► In the master bedroom, a diagonal wall was visually straightened with a custom-made headboard and cabinets adorned with Beaujeu sisal wallpaper by Lee Jofa. A two-sphere Areti lamp balances the space, which is painted in a discrete Emente Alabaster tone – overall, the colour mood is described by Chrapka as 'straw palette'. bo

ŠKODA KAMIQ

PRICED FROM EUR 15,700 | ON SALE NOW

In association with car
buyer's guide whatcar.lv

We've tried the Škoda Kamiq 1.0 TSI 95hp to see if the entry-level petrol engine makes even more sense than the impressive 115 hp unit...

Those comfy leather boots you've owned for years. The final piece of a jigsaw puzzle. A brand-new pair of the next-size-up Levi's jeans. These are all things that fit perfectly. And the Škoda Kamiq has taken inspiration from these: kamiq is an Inuit word meaning (at least according to Škoda) 'to fit, to belong, something that is perfectly in place'.

In short, the Kamiq is a small SUV that's bigger and smarter than any other small SUV. That means more boot space, more passenger comfort, and more real-life practicality in a stylish, jacked-up package, all for less than EUR 17,000.

This is the entry-level version of the mid-range 1.0-litre turbo petrol engine, but with 95 hp instead of 115 hp. That might not sound like a lot, but the same engine performs impressively in the Volkswagen T-Cross and the Seat Arona, both of which use the same basic underpinnings as the Kamiq.

Despite having less than 100 hp, this engine is still perfectly capable both in town and out on the motorway. It needs to be revved fairly hard if you want to make a brisk getaway from the lights, but there's a surprising amount of low-down urgency once you're rolling, so you don't have to shuffle through the five-speed manual gearbox too much. In fact, it cruises along rather easily at 110 km/h, and you'll have no problem speeding up to join lane three.

If you regularly carry a full car of people and luggage, though, the extra bit of strength with the 115 hp engine will be beneficial by making accelerating up to speed a less stressful experience. The lesser motor does not come with an automatic gearbox, but thankfully the Kamiq is a doddle to drive smoothly, thanks to a sweet gearshift and clutch pedal.

The engine sounds a little strained at high revs, but it settles down nicely at a cruise. There's a little bit of wind noise at fast motorway speeds and a fair degree of road noise on coarse surfaces.

The Kamiq suffers from a slightly unsettled ride around town and picks up vibrations from surface imperfections through the steering wheel and pedals. But although it's not as soft and settled as the T-Cross, it's nothing you'd get frustrated by in day-to-day driving. Ride comfort becomes noticeably better above about 65 km/h, and things are comfortable once you're on the motorway, even compared with the smooth-riding Volkswagen T-Roc.

You can add Sport Chassis Control – Škoda's reasonably priced adaptive suspension setup – on all but entry-level Active trim. While Comfort mode is, as the name suggests, pleasingly soft and comfortable, selecting Sport mode makes the ride far too harsh and unsettled. The standard suspension we tested is comfortable enough that upgrading isn't necessary.

The Kamiq's driving position is higher than you'd find in a family car such as Škoda's own Scala, but it doesn't give you quite as commanding a view of the road as the T-Roc. The driver's seat is comfortable, although all trims come with manual adjustment (electric controls are available as an option on Ambition and Elegance trims).

Interior quality impresses, as some of the harder plastics found in the T-Cross and Arona are replaced by soft-touch surfaces, while coloured inserts can be specced for some extra style.

Leg room is generous wherever you're sitting in the Kamiq, thanks to a longer wheelbase than the T-Cross and T-Roc, while there's plenty of head room, too. You'll also find 26 litres worth of storage cubbies dotted around the interior; there's even a small drawer under each front seat. The boot impresses, too, although that of the T-Cross is even more capacious.

The 1.0 TSI is a very competent and usable engine that will suit the vast majority of Kamiq buyers to a tee. Given that it's around a thousand euros cheaper than the 115 hp option, we recommend upgrading only if you regularly carry heavy loads or plan on doing an awful lot of motorway miles.

Unsurprisingly, fuel economy is best with the diesel engine (4.8–5.5 l/100 km), although the petrols aren't far off, with figures of 5.1–6.3 l/100 km for the 95 hp unit and 5.3–6.6 l/100 km for the 115 hp.

What the Škoda Kamiq adds to the small SUV class, then, is mostly space. It's bigger and classier inside than the Arona and T-Cross, offers plenty of technology, and has decent driving dynamics, too. Given the good level of standard equipment that Ambition trim comes with and a price that's just under EUR 17,000, if you stick with the 95 hp engine, this isn't just the most recommendable Kamiq but potentially the most recommendable small SUV full stop.

What Car? says...

The entry-level engine in Active trim is our pick of the Kamiq range, because it's punchy enough for most situations and great value for money.

JŪRMALA

The city for your well-being

While visiting Latvia, why not put a spa break on your agenda? Just a 15-minute drive from Riga International Airport, or half an hour from the capital, the city of Jūrmala is a great destination in which to relax and recharge your inner batteries. After all, your body is a temple to be cared for!

Jūrmala's spa and resort industry stretches back to the late 18th century, when medical professionals became interested in the area's sulphur-rich springs and their healthful properties – natural features which the locals had long known of. The first rehabilitation resort opened in 1858.

Apart from their use of cutting-edge methods and technologies, what really makes the city's spas and sanatoriums still special today is their use of the valuable natural resources of the area. The mineral waters hidden in the subsoil – rich in sulphur, bromide, and sodium chloride – as well as the healing sapropel mud found in the area's lakes are used in the treatment programmes offered by most of the 14 resort hotels and five rehabilitation centres in Jūrmala. Also explore the curative effects of amber with an amber therapy session at the Hotel Jurmala Spa, experience honey cranberry treatment in the spacious Wellness Centre at Lielupe Hotel by Semarah, or let the medical professionals at the Belorusija sanatorium and other renowned rehabilitation centres care for your well-being. In fact, Jūrmala is home to some of Latvia's best health institutions. For example, Jūrmala Hospital offers currently the most popular plastic surgeries in the world: breast augmentation or reduction, breast lift and surgery on the anterior abdominal wall, plasty for eye lids and other plastic and reconstructive surgeries.

Baltic Beach Hotel & Spa

one of the largest hotels in the city, has recently undergone some changes. Its new swimming pool area, opening for visitors this month, now has a completely new look and style. You can also warm up in the Russian steam bath infused with the aromas of herbs grown in the Latvian countryside.

Kurshi Hotel & Spa

will help you to relax completely and find the energy filled with joy and light as you let yourself enjoy pleasant sensations in the procedures for your face and body, and in sauna rituals. As for keeping active in the cold months, there are the colourful water slides at Līvu Aquapark, which is one of the largest water parks in northern Europe.

With its 24-kilometre-long arc of sandy coastline and lush pine groves, a visit to Jūrmala is in itself a good boost for one's well-being. The mild, phytoncide-rich coastal air naturally ionised by the sea has a healing effect on the respiratory tract, while the meditative sound of lapping waves is a soothing alternative to the buzz of the big city.

If you plan to visit Jūrmala, check out the local special offers, because the city's hotels and spas are always coming out with interesting, new offers and ideas for how to spend time taking care of your well-being.

FISH HOUSE BRASSERIE DE LUXE

A casual gourmet experience

Publicity photos

Riga has long deserved a restaurant for lovers of fish and seafood at which everything served truly falls under the definition of 'haute cuisine' – as it is at Fish House Brasserie de Luxe.

The restaurant stands out with its concept of casual gourmet dining with an atmosphere reminiscent of a French brasserie, which is precisely why it has been able to take over the hearts of Rigans within its first year and is now one of the city's top new restaurants.

Fish House is a family affair, in essence having become the embassy of the Abdulmuslimovs and their love of excellent food and family values. 'We welcome people spending a part of their day at our restaurant – whether it is to just enjoy a cup of tea or coffee while working on their laptop, or having a full dining experience for lunch or dinner. We want to show to our guests that casual can be special,' says Mansur Abdulmuslimov, the restaurant's manager. People clearly appreciate the laid-back ambiance of Fish House, and perhaps that is why it's a place where people connect with each other, from savvy businesspeople and politicians to hip artists and adventurous tourists. They are all united in their quest to experience (and then, more often than not, re-experience) the superb culinary journey whipped up by Fish House's head chef, Jānis Zvirbulis.

Executive chef Jānis Zvirbulis has created the menu based on his motto of 'quality without compromise'. Using modern cooking techniques and the finest quality products, Zvirbulis creates a symphony of taste, all the while honouring the cultural heritage of haute cuisine and respecting the authenticity of natural flavours.

The master chef of Fish House has studied cooking at the world's culinary mecca – Institut Paul Bocuse in Lyon – which explains his devotion to French cuisine. He subsequently perfected his skills working alongside legendary masters of culinary art in some of the finest French restaurants, including the Michelin-starred La Table des Blots.

Zvirbulis is an innovator, fond of discovering and combining various flavours that may at first elicit bewilderment, but these sorts of successful experiments are exactly why the restaurant's guests return again and again, praising the chef's nontraditional yet sensational flavour combinations. 'Every ingredient that we use at Fish House is worth its weight in gold. We have our own view of the world, and we wish to pass that on to our guests through the food that we create,' explains Zvirbulis. Although Fish House is decidedly a seafood restaurant, a few excellent meat dishes are on offer as well. For the winter season, Fish House has unveiled a special menu. Guests will have the opportunity to try the following creations from Chef Zvirbulis during the winter festivities: North Sea halibut, Norwegian scallop tartare with sturgeon caviar, and venison Wellington. The dessert menu that Zvirbulis has created is also nothing to scoff at, with such delightful treats as Luxembourg macaroons (made with green tea ice cream, raspberries, and Arabian-rose cream) and pistachio crème brûlée.

Fish House has succeeded in finding the key to its customers' taste buds, leading it to become a favourite spot for romantic dinners, business lunches, and relaxed breakfasts with friends. In fact, Riga insiders know that on Saturdays from 10:00 to 14:00, Fish House is the place to go for the most refined and delicious à la carte breakfast in the city – the twelve different organic egg dishes that Zvirbulis serves leave no room for doubt. For many, a Saturday morning in Riga is incomplete if it doesn't include going out for breakfast at Fish House.

It is accepted that wine is a perfect partner for seafood, and in charge of this aspect at Fish House is Gatis Pridāns, the restaurant's head sommelier and host. Pridāns is well-known in Riga for having worked in several of the city's top restaurants renowned for their wine and champagne service, and he has made sure that Fish House rises above the rest not only in terms of food, but with its drinks menu as well. You'll find no other place in Riga serving all-natural, additive-free Radikon biodynamic wine, and Pridāns' selection of topnotch champagnes is impressive, to say the least, including such winemakers as Henri Giraud, Drappier and Pommery. By the same token, Pridāns' wine list also features some more affordable but rare white wines from Burgundy. 'We listen to our guests and their wishes, which is why we also have a broad selection of wines that can be ordered by the glass. At Fish House, we welcome everyone who wishes to enjoy a glass of fine wine, regardless if they wish to accompany it with a meal from our excellent menu or not,' explains Pridāns.

Fish House can accommodate 36 guests, which is why it is strongly encouraged to make reservations for evening meals if you want to be sure of getting a table. And don't be surprised if you see a famous face or two – Fish House's excellent food and reasonable prices have been discovered by more than a few celebrities.

GARŠVIETA Riits

The modern flavour of the Latvian countryside

Everything good starts close to home, which is how the idea of Riits was born – a friendly, hospitable, cosy and vibrant place that uses the highest-quality seasonal products, mostly locally sourced, and turns them into what could be called the new, modern Latvian cuisine. The owner is a true enthusiast for organic produce and has travelled around Latvia to get to know smaller and larger organic producers and bring their produce to his vibrant garšvieta (meaning ‘flavour spot’ or ‘taste spot’ in Latvian), where it can all be enjoyed by us, too.

There is a story behind everything – and here there is not merely a story but also charm and style. Riits is modern and chic but simultaneously very cosy. Does it manage to pull off the combination because of its quirkiness? That’s very likely – because when you feel like you’ve taken in the view and sit back in a comfortable seat, you suddenly notice, for example, that the walls are covered with egg cartons. Eggs are kind of a passion here – the breakfast menu (and more) gets right to the point with the tastiest egg dishes that an empty stomach could dream up.

This goes equally well (and, obviously, not by accident) with the name of the place – Riits. In the standard spelling rīts, the name means ‘morning’ in Latvian. For the team at Riits, the idea of morning goes hand in hand with the adjectives fresh, brisk, lively, sunny, healthy, and enthusiastic. ‘Everything begins in the morning,’ says the owner of Riits. ‘It’s the idea of rising and shining in anticipation of what’s to come that inspires us.’

As for the idea of being a ‘taste spot’ – a garšvieta, rather than a restaurant – well, this is a story (just like the many stories where innovation comes about by accident) born of sheer necessity. It’s a story about the ultimate team collaborating to put forward both exquisite food and incredible drinks. Restaurants serve foods, bars serve drinks, but a garšvieta is a place that offers both innovative food and amazing drinks. A garšvieta is also a new concept that binds ubiquitous flavours together in one harmonious synergy.

The menu at Riits is compact and seasonal, and the vast majority of the mains as well as parts of other dishes are prepared on the establishment’s star companion – a live charcoal grill. The coal is exclusively oak, and the grill is set up in plain sight, so you’re welcome to have a look at it before you sit down to order. The light and unmistakable aroma of food being cooked over live coals certainly transports you right out of the city and slows down your pace without you even noticing – it’s a bit magical.

While featuring a few permanent, unforgettable dishes that no regular customer would allow to be replaced, the short but diverse menu gets refreshed often enough. No matter whether you’ve visited Riits before or if your first encounter with it still lies ahead, you’re in for a treat with the splendid newcomers on its menu, like the milk-fed veal chops with oven-cooked vegetables or the miso-glazed cod fillet. Should you wish to start off with a beautiful salad, the seared salmon served with sweet potato puree, quail eggs, and mixed greens will be just right. A delicious vegetarian option is the avocado salad with a tangy carrot-ginger dressing. And it’s not just salad – each menu category caters for vegetarians as well. The same goes for those who’ve come to enjoy a local touch in the dishes – each menu category has something Latvian to offer, such as the smoked fish salad with potato sauce for a starter.

The foods are hearty and satisfying but also healthy, and the Latvian-inspired dessert menu is as guilt-free as they come. A sweet cottage-cheese mousse in berry sauce is full of flavour and just about sweet enough to be considered dessert – it’s the perfect finish to a meal. A noticeable newcomer on the dessert menu is the sour cream brûlée with egg yolk, sea-buckthorn berries and white chocolate.

Riits follows the seasonality of products and works with small batches of fresh, locally sourced goods. The team is therefore able to offer a variety of daily specials. They wish to include the very small producers in the equation, too, and not just rule out their produce because it comes in too small a quantity. They know quality when they see it, so they don’t go by quantity and play with what they have to bring wonderful, small-batch goods to the table.

Come and enjoy the flavours of local, organic, and seasonal foods at the ultimate ‘taste spot’, Garšvieta Riits, which we guarantee will steal your heart at first bite.

ZIVJU LETE – inspired by the sea

A centuries-old bond with the sea and fishing is an integral part of Baltic culture. Some time ago, Latvians even had ‘fish day’ once a week, on Thursdays. The ethos behind Zivju Lete is to make every day a fish day!

Born from the love of seafood and Latvia’s fishing heritage, Zivju Lete first opened its doors in 2015. The concept of a place specialising in fish – something that was lacking on Riga’s gastronomic scene – was an instant success. First, the restaurant offered a small menu that changed regularly depending on the catch of the day. But the demand for seafood delicacies has been growing, and in 2018 Zivju Lete relocated to new, more spacious premises.

The new restaurant has introduced a more varied menu, where everyone can find a dish to their liking. Zivju Lete’s cuisine combines the best of fish and seafood recipes, both local and international. The menu features well-known classics like tartares, fish soups, mussels, and seafood sauté as well as some regional specialties, such as Baltic herring, lamprey, and sprats. The main goal of Zivju Lete’s cooking style is to showcase the seafood’s beauty without over-complicating its natural flavour. Recently, the specially invited chef from Italy, Andrea Salvatori, has added flawless Mediterranean flair to the restaurant’s cuisine with signature grilled dishes.

An actual zivju lete (or ‘fish counter’) forms the centrepiece of the open-plan kitchen. Here the best of the sea is displayed, from local fish to exotic seafood. What sets Zivju Lete apart is that it offers all of this at a reasonable price point. Whether it’s the finer end of the spectrum, like oysters and lobster, or fish brought by local fishmongers – seafood can and must be enjoyed every day. To fulfil this initiative, Zivju Lete has created a menu that includes an extensive choice of foods, from the simple fish and chips with cod to the luxurious lobster pasta with black caviar. Furthermore, this April Zivju Lete expanded and opened a seafood shop at Dzirnavu iela 63 in Riga, where one can buy fresh fish to cook at home or enjoy a glass of wine with dishes from the raw bar. Together, the shop and the restaurant bring the sea closer to the heart of the city, providing a seafood gourmet experience that is more affordable and casual.

The laid-back and casual atmosphere is also imprinted in Zivju Lete’s design. Located in one of the most beautiful and prestigious parts of Riga, the restaurant’s interior is far from snobby or pretentious. A combination of fishing-boat décor, handmade wood furniture, vintage glass tiles, and unique design elements make for a cheerful, coastal vibe. In fact, when visiting Zivju Lete, one can almost hear the waves and expect the fisherman whose tattoos inspired the restaurant’s wall painting to walk in through the door at any given moment.

Koya's head chef Pāvels Skopa

KOYA A contemporary restaurant with global cuisine near the Daugava River

For more than seven years, the restaurant Koya has been welcoming its visitors to one of the most picturesque districts of central Riga overlooking the Daugava River – Andrejsala. Over the years, the restaurant's menus and interiors have changed, but the high quality of the food has remained consistent with its focus on serving world cuisine with Asian flavour accents.

Along with being bestowed with industry recognition, Koya's head chef Pāvels Skopa has received high honours at several international chef competitions, including two silver medals in March of this year at the prestigious 11th International Culinary Competition of Southern Europe 2019 in Greece. Moreover, just this autumn Skopa was awarded the title of Latvia's Chef of the Year for 2019. As Skopa himself points out, he is most often an innovator and experimenter in the kitchen, and has become skilled at creating unusual flavours and dishes. Koya's head chef finds inspiration for his culinary masterpieces in both everyday things and in the cultures and culinary traditions of different countries, resulting in his interpretation of world cuisine. When creating a menu at Koya, Skopa tries to highlight every dish's own source of umami – the cornerstone of Asian cuisine. To achieve this, ingredients are sourced from around the world, such as sea scallops from Japan and pigeon meat from France.

The chef and his team change and adjust the menu at Koya twice a year, allowing for new taste experiments while retaining the excellent quality and uniqueness of the food. This is highly appreciated both by customers who have been going to Koya for years and first-time visitors. One of Skopa's signature dishes and now a mainstay of the menu is dried mushroom broth, also called mushroom tea, consisting of roasted goose liver, toasted hokkaido milk bread, black garlic, hazelnut milk gel, and pears. Customer favourites from the appetiser menu include panko fried oysters with remoulade sauce, pickled cabbage and salicornia; this dish is especially welcomed by restaurant guests who may be a bit wary of consuming raw oysters. For a main course, the chef recommends trying the sesame fried tuna fillet served with okayu (rice porridge), nori powder, kale, broccoli, and a spicy mango sauce.

Each section of the menu at Koya has been specially designed to have purely vegetarian dishes in addition to ones that feature meat and fish. What you definitely won't find on the menu, however, is a classic Caesar salad, and the same goes for standard desserts. Skopa is always on the lookout for new flavour combinations, including within the realm of sweeter fare. Results include innovative desserts such as pumpkin cream and the chef's own version of the honey cake so popular in Latvia, which in this case has been transformed into a honey biscuit layered with with sour cream, sea buckthorn and carrot sorbet, and pollen – a new combination that cannot fail to delight.

Koya stands out not only for its excellent à la carte menu but also for its weekday business lunch specials and what is undoubtedly one of the best and most popular Sunday brunch spots in Riga. As the chef points out, you likely won't get in for brunch if you haven't booked a table in advance: 'People are very fond of our brunch because we serve what could be called classic comfort food, including a variety of salads, pastries, and both hot and cold items'.

Over the years, Koya has also undergone a number of transformations in terms of its interior design – initially rather reserved and formal, the restaurant has gradually acquired a more relaxed and urban feel. Yet the restaurant's key design elements and allusion to a rustic cottage or cabin have been preserved, an important part of the establishment's identity seeing as that is what the Japanese word 'koya' denotes. Thanks to the skills of interior designer Evija Ķirsone-Slavinska, this spring Koya underwent a visual transformation with a mood that is now even more laid-back and soothing. The design scheme was inspired by the works of the famous fashion artist Vivienne Westwood, often called the 'Queen of Punk'. New elements such as unique black ceiling lamps, lighted wall accents, and lots of green plants masterfully retain the original essence of Koya while giving the space modern flair. Adding to the cosy atmosphere are the new little nooks that have been tucked in, perfect for lounging with drinks from the extensive wine and cocktail menu. Speaking of drinks, one of Koya's signature cocktails is the Koya Pisco Sour made with the famous South-American grape brandy, its zing and muted colour perfectly fitting in with the restaurant's setting. And as the weather becomes more wintry, Koya's hot cocktails always climb to the top as a customer request.

THE CATCH

The exquisite flavours of Japanese cuisine

The Japanese izakaya The Catch lets diners find themselves in two places at once: the charming Quiet Centre of Riga, which the restaurant calls home, but also Japan, the birthplace of sushi.

The Catch was started by husband and wife Alexander and Alexandra Slobine as a small family-run Japanese gastropub that grew into an international business. With his extensive local and international experience in the restaurant business, especially in Asian and Japanese cuisines, Alexander is the heart and soul of The Catch. It was he who opened the first Japanese restaurant in Riga almost twenty years ago, attracting gourmets from the Baltic region for years to come. Now he's put his knowledge and experience into this cosy restaurant, which he calls his life's work.

The Catch combines three basic values that, in Alexander's mind, are critical to creating an excellent brand: experience in the restaurant business, the highest-quality, best-origin products, and a top-class team. These three elements also came into play when creating the menu at The Catch. Here diners can taste the pride of Japanese food, sashimi, which is made from only the best raw fish. It is available in two styles:

classic (served on ice with a side order of soy sauce) or in the new style currently trending in Europe (with a special sauce accompanying each fish). The restaurant also offers rolled sushi and various appetisers as well as meats, fish, and vegetarian items cooked on the robata-yaki grill.

The Catch's team takes pride in its top-quality fish. Here patrons can enjoy bluefin tuna, yellowtail, scallops, eel, Scottish salmon, and even such a delicacy as tuna belly. 'We want to offer our diners only the best, so we carefully choose our product sources and ingredient suppliers. We hold a fish importer's license to buy fish directly from the fish market. To that end, The Catch serves up the best crab meat from Kamchatka, organically farmed salmon from Scotland marked with the French quality sign Label Rouge, and shrimp from Mozambique, Argentina, and other countries,' Alexander says.

Among the guests' favourite dishes are the bluefin tuna and tuna belly, which is the softest and priciest part of the tuna. The Catch was the first restaurant in the Baltics to import Atlantic bluefin tuna on a regular basis. Diners here also speak highly of the chicken ramen, which features organically-raised, robata-grilled meat over Japanese noodles. The broth for the ramen takes six hours to prepare, and it is made fresh every morning. The team has kept the vegans and vegetarians in mind, too, offering plenty of dining options besides meat and fish. One of the favourite vegan menu items are the grilled Japanese mushrooms, a truly unique dish. The Catch entrusts the preparation of the traditional Japanese dessert known as mochi to a specially-trained cook.

The dining style at The Catch is relaxed, heartwarming, and fun. The restaurant's concept suggests that people dine sitting close to each other (almost family-style seating), and all of the foods are meant for sharing. Dishes can also be served in a traditional style, if guests wish. The Catch can host up to 42 diners, and guests admit that the reasonable prices allow one to try out at least a few different dishes and broaden one's experience of Japanese cuisine.

In early 2019 The Catch brand expanded to two restaurants. The second restaurant has found a home in Germany's modern and lively capital, Berlin. The restaurant, whose interior was created by Latvian architect and designer Zane Tetere-Šulce, is located at Bleibtreustraße 41 in the Charlottenburg neighbourhood and can host up to 170 diners. Not long after opening, Tagesspiegel named the restaurant the most interesting newcomer to Berlin; it has also been noticed by GQ Russia magazine and Berlin's Morgenpost.

VOODOO GRILL RESTAURANT

excellent food for gourmet tastes

Featuring the best of international cuisine while highlighting a varied selection of Asian and European flavours, Voodoo Grill Restaurant is located in the very centre of Riga in the largest casino in the Baltics, the Olympic Voodoo Casino, which is part of the Radisson Blu Latvija hotel building. The restaurant serves guests until five in the morning.

The restaurant's menu offers gourmet grilled dishes and tempting desserts made from high-quality ingredients. Chef Aleksandrs Andrējevs, who has developed menus for several restaurants in Latvia and Belarus during his professional career, likes to transform seemingly traditional and customary recipes according to his tastes and style.

A large part of the food served at Voodoo Grill Restaurant is prepared on a charcoal grill to give it a unique and unforgettable flavour. Even the tomato-based seafood soup is finished on the grill, the final process imbuing it with such an unmistakable aroma that it has become one of the top choices among the restaurant's guests. Chef Andrējevs tried out different types of charcoal to find the perfect one that would enhance the taste of his dishes and highlight the qualities of each food. After a long search, Cuban charcoal (actually imported from Cuba) was deemed the best. The temperature of the grill reaches 300 to 350 degrees, which allows for quick cooking while maintaining juiciness and the special flavours of each dish.

Although Voodoo Grill Restaurant serves international cuisine, the chef enjoys working with Latvian food products as well, highlighting the special characteristics of each ingredient by combining them to enhance their flavours. Regarding food products and fresh produce, the restaurant team pays special attention to their origin and quality; for example, the grilled eel that you'll find on the menu is sourced from Latvia's own Lake Rāzna, and the fisherman himself brings the fresh catch to the restaurant. Another exclusive fish found on the menu of Voodoo Grill Restaurant is black cod, a relative rarity for Latvia's restaurants. As the chef points out, black cod is particularly rich in vitamins, heart-healthy oils and nutrients, which is why he was adamant that this fish be included on the menu.

Although Voodoo Grill Restaurant does offer both vegetarian and a variety of fish and seafood options, it's the meat dishes that are among the most sought after here. A highlight is the world-renowned Wagyu steak from Japan, served in only a small number of the very best restaurants in Latvia. This exclusive Japanese beef is distinguished by a highly pronounced marbling of intermuscular fat that makes the steak extra juicy and beyond compare with regular steak. Unsurprisingly, the slow-cooked beef ribs are quite popular as well – gently sautéed for 72 hours in a special port wine marinade created by the chef himself, the resulting meat is melt-in-your-mouth tender. Those who prefer pork will appreciate the 48-hour cooked pork ribs, grilled to a finish over coals and smothered in a Latvian kvass glaze. Without a doubt, the all-time bestseller at Voodoo Grill Restaurant is the chef's beef burger. The patty is made from beef minced on site, and every morning the restaurant's kitchen basques in the aroma of freshly baked burger buns (there's a secret ingredient as well – the chef's special sauce). And last but not least, all of the salads on the menu are tossed with the chef's original, handmade dressings that you won't find anywhere else.

Voodoo Grill Restaurant is one of the few places in Riga where you can find a delicious, freshly made meal even late at night. Office workers with short lunch breaks have not been forgotten, and the restaurant's business lunch offer, changed weekly, is available on weekdays from 12:00 to 3:00 pm. Every Thursday the restaurant hosts wine evenings, and on weekends visitors can enjoy live music concerts or DJ performances as Voodoo Grill Restaurant becomes a festive party venue. Regardless of the time of day you visit Voodoo Grill Restaurant, please note that because it is located on the premises of a casino you must be at least 18 to enter.

IKOS OLIVIA an unforgettable gastronomy experience

Mediterranean cuisine with hints of Scandinavian flavour

Chef Alexander Kardash

For already more than half a year the Ikos Olivia restaurant has been welcoming Rigans and guests to the city with a combination of Mediterranean and Northern traditions and foods that are not available anywhere else in Latvia.

The story of Ikos Olivia must begin with the story about its chef, Alexander Kardash, who is responsible for bringing the taste of the world to the restaurant's menu. Although Kardash has more than 20 years' experience in the fine dining sector, having worked at restaurants from across Europe to Japan, he still makes time to train at some of the best restaurants in the world at least twice a year. He has worked at Michelin-starred restaurants in Singapore, Norway, and Moscow and has even developed a menu for the Queen of Norway. In fact, several of the foods that appeared on that royal menu, such as the North Sea cod and the popular risotto with crab meat, can now be ordered at Ikos Olivia in Riga.

In creating the menu for Ikos Olivia, Kardash has taken inspiration from French, Italian, Greek, and Spanish gastronomic traditions but has also included hints of Asian flavours and combined everything with his own passion for experimental cuisine. However, he and his team at the restaurant pay most attention to the products they use – they must be not only seasonal but also clean and organically grown. That's why Kardash personally knows each of the restaurant's suppliers.

‘The fresh produce and ingredients are the most important thing. They must be not only correctly grown, obtained, and delivered; they must also be processed correctly in our kitchen,’ says the chef. ‘Therefore our task is to find produce and meats of excellent quality, prepare them with respect, and serve them in an agreeable setting. In addition, it’s important for us to give thought to each ingredient, from the fish and meat all the way to the mushrooms and berries, which are, for example, gathered in the forests of northern Finland. If each of the ingredients in a dish is of the highest quality, then the meal is truly delicious and enjoyable.’

Kardash explains that Ikos Olivia is distinct not only for its high-quality produce and unique flavours and manners of preparation, but also for its general philosophy. Each food on the menu has a story of its own. As he created the menu, Kardash decided to highlight fish and seafood. The Mediterranean turbot is from the French coast, where it is raised on an organic fish farm, while the North Sea cod is caught in the Barents Sea and the shrimp are supplied from Canada. The swordfish comes from the Atlantic Ocean and sometimes takes more than 20 hours to be delivered to the restaurant. Ikos Olivia is the only restaurant in Latvia to have been granted an official catch quota for bluefin tuna, leading the chef to create a unique concept for Riga – a tuna menu.

The Ikos Olivia team has also kept meat lovers in mind. Most of its meats come from Ireland, because, as Kardash explains, the Irish have not only been meat producers for many generations, but they are also able to ensure that the meat delivered to his restaurant is organically grown, tender, juicy, and full of flavour.

The dessert menu at Ikos Olivia is not large, but each of the dishes contains refined, nuanced flavours that might even recall childhood. One of the favourite desserts at the restaurant is the caramelised Brunost, or cheese cream with cloudberry from the Arctic – guests call it an absolute masterpiece. Another highlight is the chocolate brownie with black garlic and lingonberry sauce, which once again confirms the chef's tendency to not shy away from experimenting with various flavours and manners of preparation. It is precisely for this reason that the menu at Ikos Olivia often features fermented products made on site at the restaurant, including nuts, egg yolks, and kombucha, which features in several sauces.

Ikos Olivia is located in a two-storey wooden building dating to the 19th century in the heart of Riga's Art Nouveau district. The restaurant has taken care not only with its gastronomic offer but also its visual image. Naturally, the exterior attracts attention, but so does the well-considered interior, with its subtle colours, brick walls, velvet, copper, wood, and the romance of an attic space. Because Ikos Olivia can accommodate up to 100 guests, the restaurant's unforced informal atmosphere is ideal for meetings with friends and romantic dinners as well as for business meetings and larger celebrations.

Pilots out of their office

Baltic Outlook introduces you to some of the most important people at airBaltic – its flight crew members, who have some of the most interesting hobbies.

Pēteris Zaretoks (42), captain on Dash 8 Q400 aircraft, from Latvia

HOBBY

Before arriving at the photo studio, Pēteris Zaretoks asks which floor it's located on. He'll need the photographer to help him carry the off-road tire up to the second floor. 'This is an off-road tire, and it would be a sin to drive it on a normal road,' he says as he begins telling about his hobby, off-road driving.

When Zaretoks began working at the airfield in the northern Latvian town of Cēsis after graduating from university, he met businessman Gundars Skudriņš, whose own airfield was located right next door. Skudriņš is known as one of the first off-road enthusiasts in Latvia, and soon Zaretoks also joined the Trophy Raid movement. Back then, almost 20 years ago, off-road driving was very interesting. 'We'd often drive through marshes, and the cars would sink up to their windows,' he remembers. It helped that property rights in the newly independent country were not yet fully settled, and therefore one could move about quite freely in Latvia. Now the race organisers face quite the challenge in having to coordinate every single detail and must carefully mark out all the race routes.

This hobby entails endless fixing of the off-road cars after pushing them to their utmost, and this is linked with another passion of Zaretoks' – overhauling cars. Although he doesn't really feel experienced enough to be called a true restorer, he currently has three Audi Quattros in his garage. Rallying reached its high point in Europe in the mid-1980s, and after the borders opened up following the collapse of the Soviet Union a few years later, it became a matter of pride for young men in Latvia to get their hands on an Audi Coupé of their own. Zaretoks was among them and has managed to hold on to that first car to the present day. Right now, it's standing in his garage, the engine taken out and placed next to it, awaiting its turn to be overhauled. 'Mostly I'm just excited to be able to drive this car again – it's almost like creating my own dream car,' he says.

HOW IT ALL BEGAN

Upon graduating from high school, Zaretoks wasn't sure where he wanted to continue his education. Then he learned about the automobile construction and testing programme at the Institute of Aviation, which is now a part of Riga Technical University. 'I remember a teacher then suggesting the aviation engineering programme, so I transferred to that,' says Zaretoks. 'When I graduated, I began working as a mechanic and technician for AN-2 aircraft at the Cēsis airfield, which at that time belonged to the Latvian National Guard.'

Zaretoks later worked at the Latvian Air Force base in Lielvārde, where he took care of helicopters and was offered pilot training with the United States Air Force. Naturally, he agreed and returned from the United States a year and a half later as a licensed pilot.

Zaretoks spent 14 years with the Latvian Air Force and joined airBaltic only five years ago. 'I made the career move because it was quite obvious where I'd be five years down the line – in the same place, just flying even less than I was at the time. I'd be promoted to major, and eventually probably to lieutenant colonel, but lieutenant colonels don't fly at all. And I wanted to fly,' he says. 'airBaltic offers career development. The new Airbus A200-300 aircraft have entered the airline's fleet, and we've got opportunities to learn and develop.'

Let's take a look at where our flight attendants love to travel and at the fascinating hobbies and talents that they have!

1/ Senior cabin crew member Atis Grunde began working for airBaltic ten years ago. What he loves most is seeing smiling passengers exiting the airplane. That's a sign that they've enjoyed the flight and that he's accomplished his goal of making that day a little better.

2/ In his free time, Atis enjoys boating, hiking and bicycle riding. Distance is not the deciding factor, he says. The main thing is what one sees, experiences, and contemplates during an excursion. When on bicycle, he prefers forest trails and rural roads.

3/ Atis would like to travel more, although he did spend this past New Year's in Oslo, visiting a good friend of his.

4/ Ulrika Bārbale attended an airBaltic 'Open Days' event in July 2018, and by the end of the year she had become a flight attendant herself. She's always enjoyed flying, and a decision to change her environment led her to the airline. She was also able to graduate from college while working at airBaltic.

5/ This picture was taken last December in Mahanakhon, Bangkok's tallest skyscraper, when Ulrika and a friend took a trip to the Thai capital. She considers the travel opportunities her job offers to be a big bonus.

from the lives of our flight attendants

Want to become an airBaltic flight attendant? Join the team at careers.airbaltic.com/years her creations have become fancier and more complex. Her favourite part of the process is decorating the cake.

7/ It will be six years this spring since senior cabin crew member Mareks Vertelis joined airBaltic. He had previously worked for a different airline and knew he liked the work, but he wanted to return to and work from his native Latvia. He enjoys his friendly colleagues, the variety that his job offers, and the satisfaction he feels when passengers appreciate the work of flight attendants.

8/ Mareks has been playing lacrosse since he was in high school. He liked the sport from the very first time he tried it. Now, during the winter season, it's easy to combine training with his work schedule.

9/ Mareks visited Morocco already some time ago. Nowadays, he enjoys spending his time off with friends right here in Latvia. Right now, he only actively travels for work and for international lacrosse tournaments.

Spice up your trip with our extras!

Book these useful services along with your ticket at airbaltic.com or add them to your booking later on.

Heavy cabin baggage

With a Basic ticket you can take on board one cabin bag (55x40x23 cm) and one personal item (30x40x10 cm) with a total weight of eight kilograms free of charge.

However, sometimes you may need to carry more but want to avoid waiting for a checked suitcase at the baggage belt. Now you can add an extra four kilograms to your cabin baggage for only EUR 11.99 and take a total of 12 kilograms on board.

Please note: If you purchase extra cabin baggage weight, your cabin baggage must still remain within the above-mentioned dimensions. Exceeding the allowed cabin baggage weight or size limits will cost EUR 60 at the airport.

Early check-in

With a Basic ticket, you have the option of early check-in for your flight up to five days before departure. This is especially handy for short trips, for which you can print out your boarding pass for both directions from home and don't need to worry about finding a printer while abroad. To qualify for early check-in, reserve a seat on board starting from EUR 3.99.

Checked baggage

Add checked baggage if you want to take up to 20 kilograms, including liquids over 100 ml, which are not allowed in cabin baggage. The cheapest option is to book checked baggage along with your ticket at airbaltic.com starting from EUR 19.99. You can also add baggage anytime later at a higher price.

Pre-order a meal

Order a meal before your flight and be among the first served on board. Choose our great value meal sets, which include a main course, dessert, and a drink starting from EUR 9.99. All meals are freshly prepared shortly before the flight. Special vegetarian and kids' meals are also available.

Reserve a seat

Are you a window person, or do you favour more legroom? Want to avoid the middle seat or sit together with your family? Or do you want to sit in the front to be the first off the plane?

Whichever it is, you can secure your favourite seat in advance starting from EUR 3.99. With a reserved seat you will enjoy an additional bonus – the opportunity to check in for your flight already five days before departure (instead of the usual 36 hours).

Fast track in Riga

Add fast-track security check to your booking for only EUR 9.99 and skip the security lines at Riga Airport.

Special equipment*

Whatever your hobby, you don't have to live without it during your trip. Take your bicycle, skis, or golf bag with you from EUR 59.99.

Guitars, cellos, and other fragile musical instruments that do not fit in cabin baggage can be transported on the seat next to the passenger if a special ticket has been purchased for their transportation.

Assistance for children flying alone*

If you are unable to accompany your children, our crew can take care of them from the time they check in to the moment when they meet a parent or guardian at the destination airport. Unaccompanied minor service costs from EUR 60 and is available for children aged 5 to 17.

Travelling with pets*

Your furry friend can travel in the cabin if its crate fits under the seat in front of you. Larger animals are placed in the cargo hold during the flight.

*Book these services at airBaltic ticket offices or via the call centre: T: +371 67006006, reservations@airbaltic.com.

FAQs about meals on board

No matter what your question about flying is, you can ask us via Facebook or Twitter, and airBaltic's dedicated social media team will be happy to answer it! Here we share the most frequently asked questions about food on board.

If I've purchased a Basic airBaltic ticket, are the meals included in my booking?
We're trying to keep ticket prices low, and that's why meals and other extras are not included in our cheapest Basic tickets. However, you can pre-order a meal during the ticket purchase on airbaltic.com. You can also buy it later through the Manage My Booking section on our website, or even during online check-in, starting from five days up to an hour before departure. If you prefer personal service, you can order via our Call Centre as well.

I'm travelling in Business class. Do I need to purchase a meal in advance?
Meals and drinks are already included in the ticket price for all of our Business class passengers. The service includes a three-course gourmet meal and a large selection of soft drinks and alcoholic beverages. If you have specific dietary requirements, it's possible to pre-order a special meal before the flight.

How many different meals do you offer? Are there vegetarian options available?
On the airBaltic website you can choose from 18 different dishes, including vegetarian, gluten-free and kids' meals. But a more sophisticated selection of over 70 dishes is available on the special website airbalticmeal.com for pre-order up to 24 hours before departure. Prices for our delicious meal sets, which include a snack, main course, dessert, and drink of your choice, start at EUR 9.99.

I forgot to purchase a meal in advance. Can I still purchase something to eat on board?
Yes, you can purchase any meals you would like from our onboard menu. Please check at the end of this magazine for the current menu.

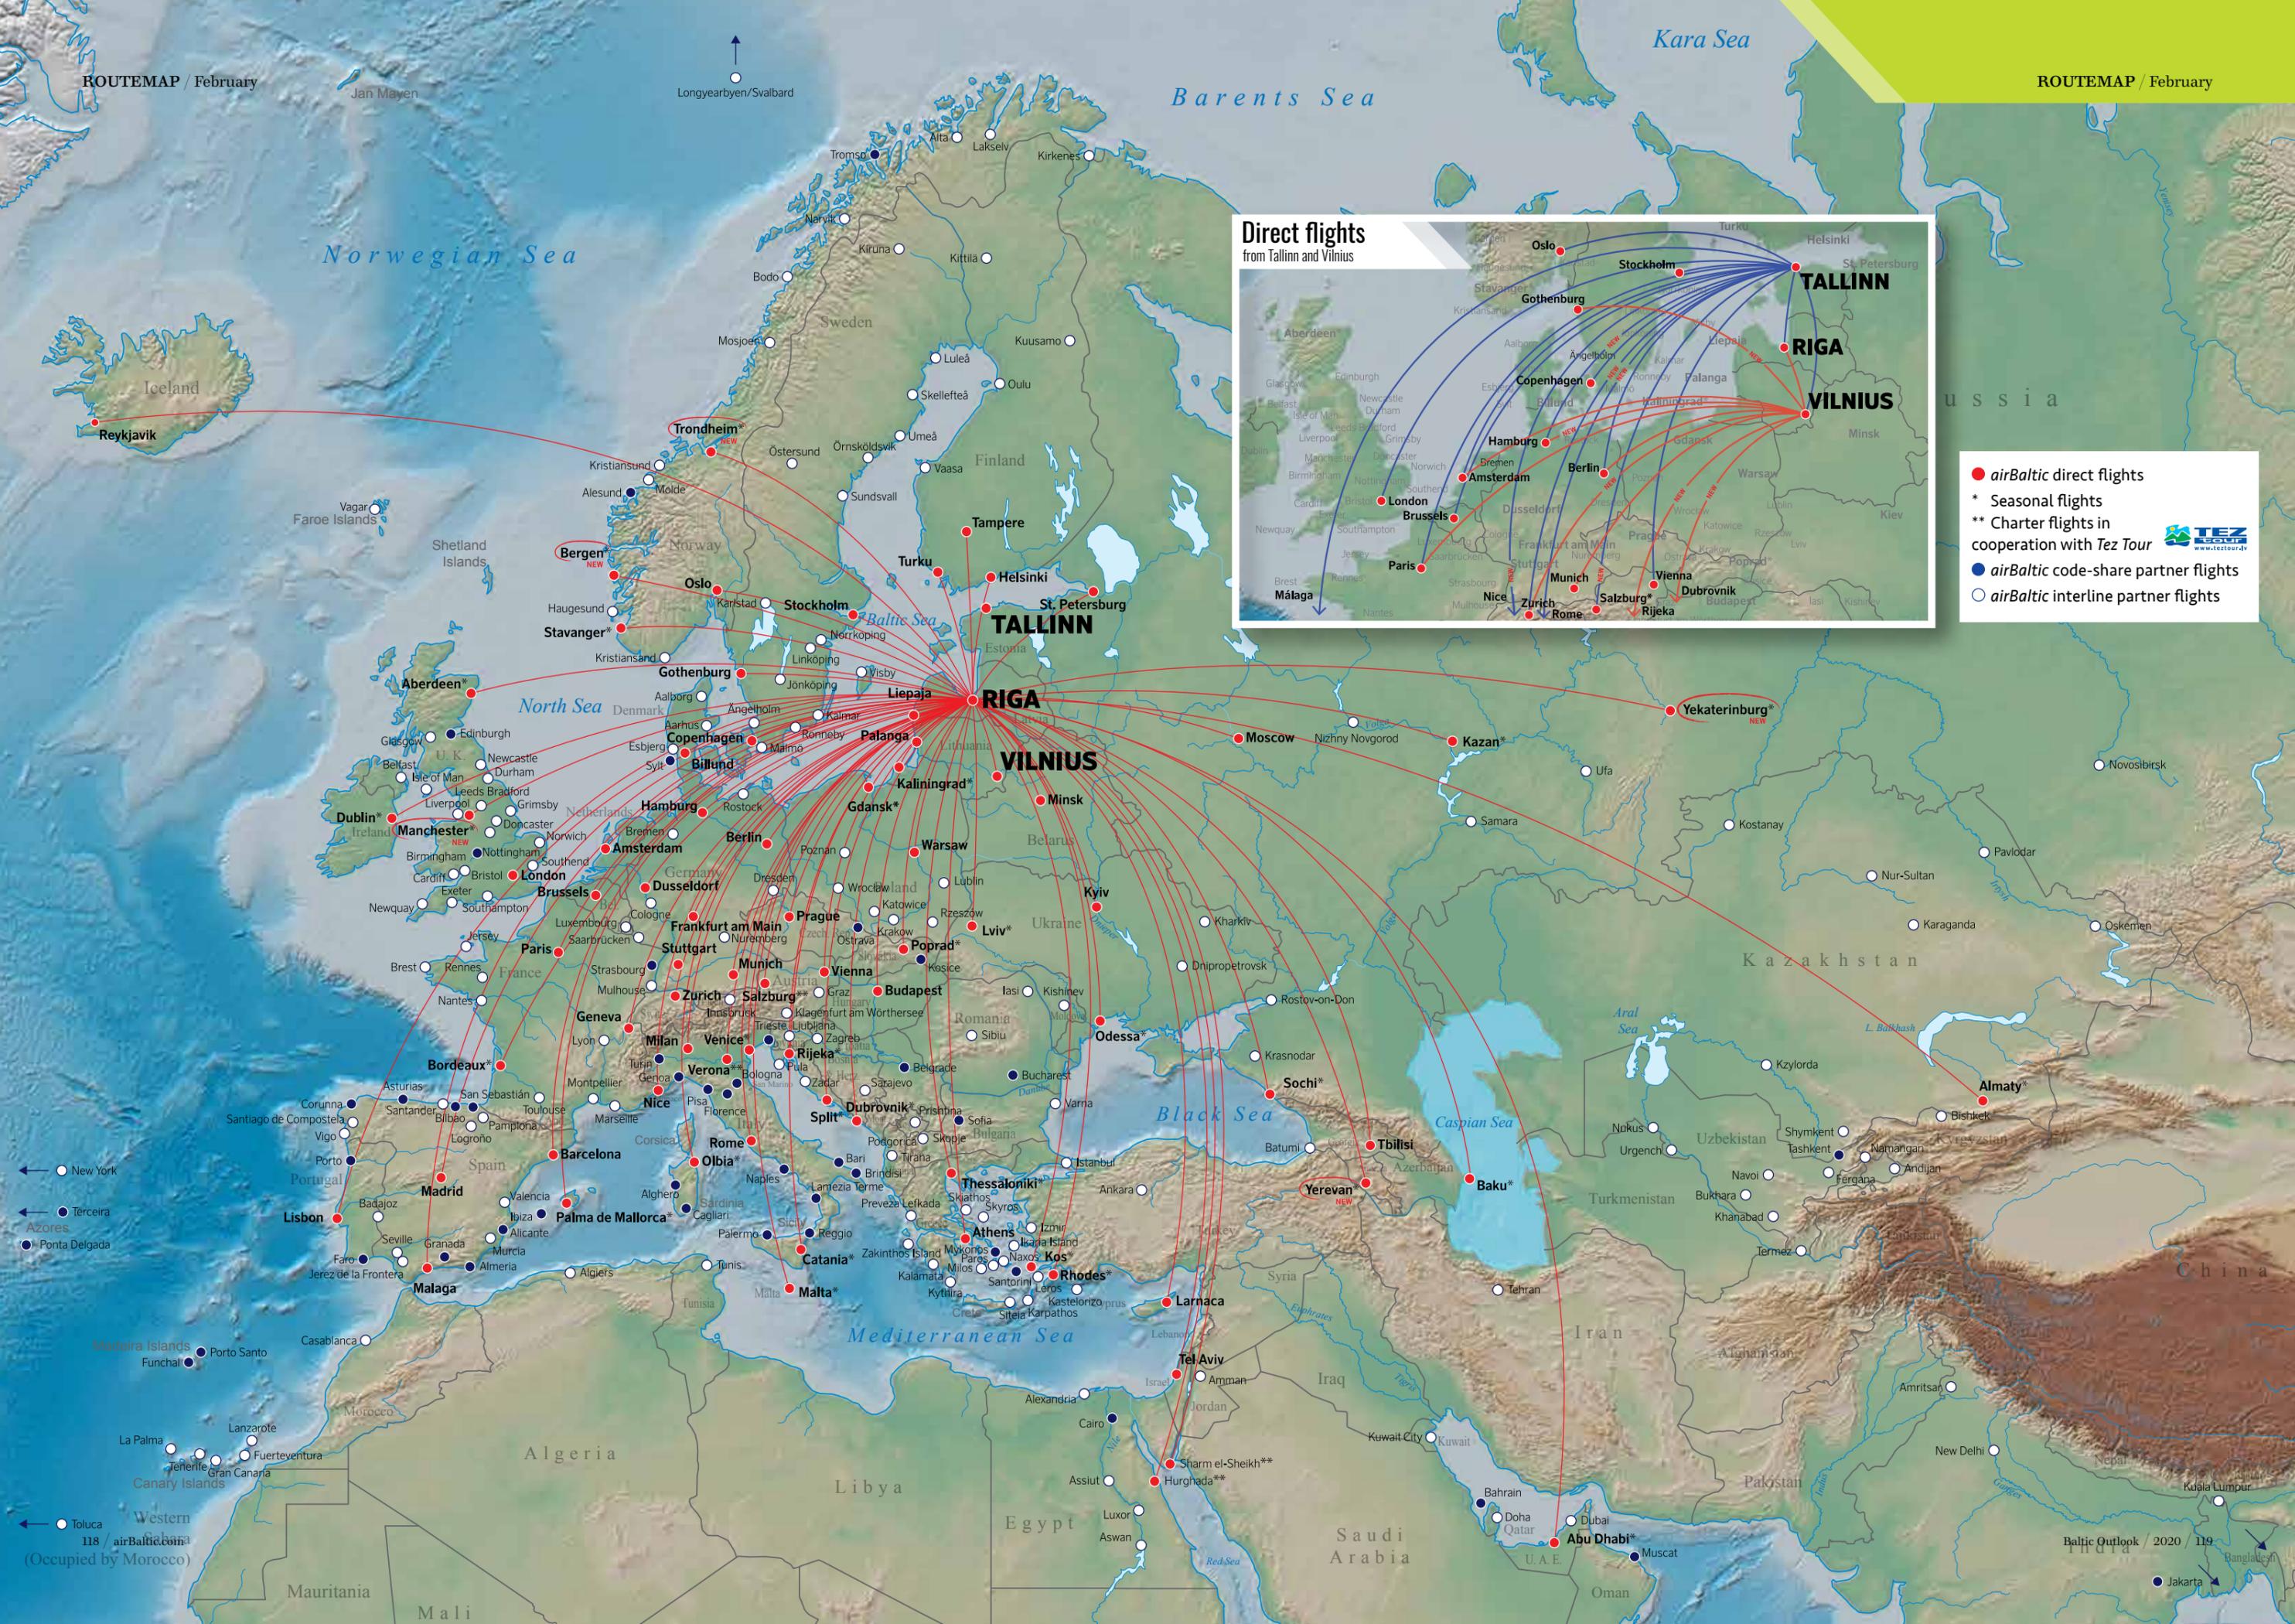

What is the difference between the menu available on board and the one for pre-order at airbaltic.com?
There is limited choice of top favourite best sellers available on board, while online you can choose from a large variety of meals. There is also a possibility that all the meals are sold out on board, especially when you sit at the end of the aircraft. To make sure you get exactly the meal you want, it's safer to pre-order. The price for the meal sets when pre-ordering is better than if you buy a meal and drink separately on board. And besides, people who pre-order meals get served first on the airplane!

Where are the meals prepared?
All meals from our pre-order menu are freshly prepared right before each flight in the LSG Sky Chefs kitchen located in Riga Airport. The meals are then delivered to the flights, and, if it's a hot meal, the cabin crew will heat it up just before serving in the aircraft galley.

I would like to surprise my wife, who is flying by herself, and order her something nice. How can I do that?
We advise you to check airbaltic.com for all available options and make your order there. You may order our delicious cheesecake or macaroons, a bottle of champagne, or a bouquet of roses. And you can include a personal note that will be delivered to her in a special envelope.

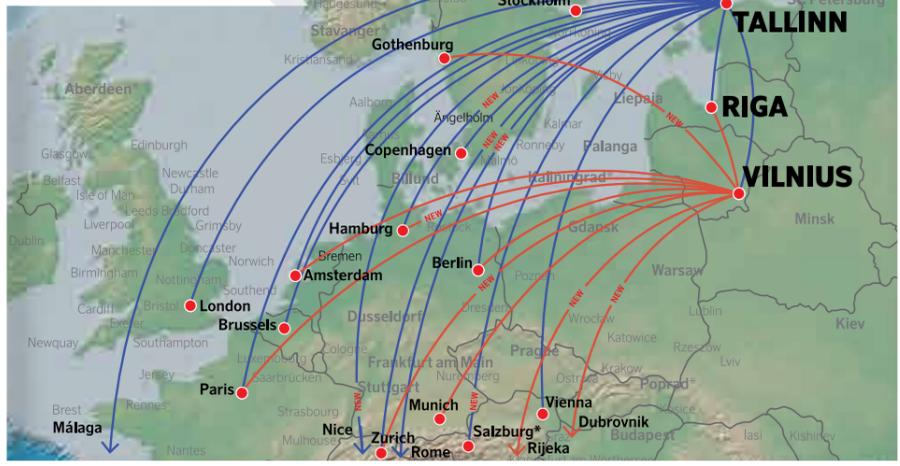

Are there any restrictions when ordering a meal at airbalticmeal.com?
It is advisable to order your meals and drinks up to 24 hours prior to your flight. But no worries if you miss that, because you can still order the most popular meal sets during online check-in up to one hour before departure.

I'm flying from Helsinki to Riga, but I'm not able to purchase a hot meal. Why is that?
Hot meals are served on flights that are more than one hour and 30 minutes long. On shorter flights you are welcome to choose from our delicious cold starters and salads.

I've been testing the Touch Beauty Ultrasonic facial care device. I'm thrilled! The device has 3 functions: 1. The cleansing function opens pores perfectly and the skin is cleansed much deeper than with the usual cleansing cosmetics. 2. Moisturizing – by applying a thicker layer of serum or cream than usual, this device embeds the product deeper into the skin. 3. Lifting – helps my skin maintain elasticity. My daily facial care has become so much more effective!

Testēju Touch Beauty Ultrasonic sejas kopšanas ierīci. Esmu sajūsmā! Ierīcei ir 3 funkcijas. 1. Ar attīrīšanas funkciju poras lieliski atveras un āda attīrās daudz dziļāk nekā tikai lietojot attīrošos kosmētikas līdzekļus. 2. Mitrināšana – uzklājot serumu vai krēmu biežākā kārtā kā parasti, šī ierīce iestrādā līdzekli dziļāk ādā. 3. Liftings – palīdz manai sejas ādai saglabāt elastīgumu. Manas ikdienas rūpes par seju ir kļuvušas daudz efektīvākas.

Протестировала устройство для омоложения лица Touch Beauty Ultrasonic. Я в восторге! Устройство имеет 3 функции. 1. Благодаря функции очищения, поры открываются идеально, и кожа очищается намного глубже, чем просто с помощью очищающей косметики. 2. Увлажнение – наносю сыворотку или крем более толстым слоем чем обычно, это устройство помогает средству глубже проникнуть в кожу. 3. Лифтинг – помогает коже лица сохранять упругость. Мой ежедневный уход за лицом стал намного эффективнее.

Elegants un ļoti viegls pulkstenis, uz rokas praktiski nav jūtams. Mirdzošs un klasisks. Pulksteņa rādītāji izgaismojas arī tumsā. Lieliski sader gan ar uzvalku, gan ikdienišķāku apģērbu. Esmu pamanījis, ka tas pievērš uzmanību, cilvēki to pamana.

Элегантные часы, настолько легкие, что вы не чувствуете их на руке. Блестящий и классический вид. Циферблат светится в темноте. Часы можно носить как с костюмом, так и с повседневной одеждой. Я заметил, что на них обращают внимание.
